Class War in Britain

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

BRITAIN is worried about the government's "trade disputes-trade union" bill. It is intended to cripple the power of trade unions, limiting the right to strikes, etc. Britain fears that a dangerous class war. Ordinarily Baldwin's ability to establish its government, with Ramsay MacDonald as prime minister, shows the power of British labor organization, a thing unknown in this country is scorned by political parties.

HOWEVER, Baldwin, and others responsible for the British empire, know the empire cannot rule all around the world if power is divided at home. They fear that a long coal strike and long coal strike that the empire might be destroyed at home. Those responsible are ready to fight that, even if it does mean civil war."

Real trouble at home, not rebellion abroad, that threatens Great Britain. In China, the north now has the advantage over the hitherto victorious south. Those hundreds of millions fighting back and forth, killing each other, help to solve Europe's Chinese problem. A British warship riddles the Nanking forts.

RUSSIA is mobilizing an army to make China respect bolshevism, which it refuses to adopt. "If you won't love me, fear me," says Russia.

WHEN British statesmen read five lines cabled from Lucknow telling of Mohammedans, praying at the tomb of one of their saints, bombed by Hindus, they know that Asia will long be busy with class war. The problem is to control class war at home, in the only land of aristocratic and capitalist party.

RELIGIOUS war continues in Mexico. General Amaro, Mexican secretary of war and navy, accuses Mexican Knights of Columbus of holding up a train recently, burning cars and seizing government funds. American passengers on the train say the band of 200 attacking the train repeatedly raised the revolution's cry, "Long Live Christ, the King!"

Rev. Jose Garcia, Catholic priest, arrested, is held for trial accused of communicating with rebels against the government.

OUR foreigners were wise keeping national government and public school separate from religion, forbidding government to interfere with religion, and forbidding religion to interfere with government or schools.

Those that would force religious control on schools or government risk the welfare of the religion that interests them.

IN Germany there is religious agitation, a clash between Protestant and Catholic churches and the republic, based on a religious effort to control the schools.

To let the citizen believe what he likes and teach it to his children, at home, and in his own schools, if he chooses to pay for them, to keep religion absolutely apart from government, is the safest course. ESPECIALLY FOR RELIGION.

TWENTY-FOUR trust companies in New York City earned more than 50 million dollars in one year.

"Great heavens!" exclaims the worried radical; "what chance has the individual competing with gigantic aggregations of money?"

WELL, Henry Ford is an individual, and in that same year his net profit was $90,000,000, thirty millions more than all of New York City's trust companies combined.

Then just as the good radical begins to worry about the individual capitalist, he hears that one great automobile corporation, General Motors, earned in the year twice as much as Henry Ford.

The question is not how much the individual or the corporation earns, but how the money is earned, how the public is treated in the earning process, and to what extent, if any, individual opportunity is crippled by great combinations.

THE more the individual or organization earns, the better for the country, if the earning is done on a fair basis. Great earning normally means high efficiency, cheap production, wide distribution—three things that the country needs.

INTEREST yourself in vitamins. Dr. H. C. Sherman learned professor of chemistry, proves that vitamins bring maturity earlier and make it last longer. Vitamins are found in milk, butter, lettuce and all green vegetables, cod liver oil, red wine(barred here), fruits, yeast, etc.

In addition to vitamins mineral salts are absolutely necessary to life. No animal can live without them.

Public school education should include information on diet. Mothers especially are interested in vitamins. Experiments with animals show vitamins influence the number of the young and successfully rearing after birth.

COMPANY TURNS DOWN SCHEDULE OF OHIO CITIES

BATTLE LINES DRAWN

Schedule Expert To Be Hired by Municipalities To Aid Towns

The Logan Gas Co. has rejected the final compromise terms proposed for settlement of its rate controversy with Marion and 33 other Ohio cities and hostilities have been resumed with every prospect of being fought to a finish before the state utilities commission.

Announcement to this effect came today from Grant E. Mouser Jr., former Marion city solicitor, who has been actively identified with the rate fight since it started about two years ago, and who says that he and other attorneys representing the cities are preparing to re-enter the conflict with forces strengthened and more firmly aligned than ever.

First Step

The first step will be to employ H. R. Allensworth, Columbus gas rate expert, to assist in directing the cities' contest for a rate reduction. Mr. Mouser, who was reached by telephone this morning at Columbus, where he is now employed as special counsel with the attorney general, stated that copies of an ordinance providing for employment of Allensworth are to be sent to all of the 34 cities. The ordinance is being drawn up today and the 34 copies will be mailed out tonight.

Peace negotiations between the gas company and the cities completely collapsed last week when Raymond Cross, president of the Ohio Branch of the company, served formal notice that the cities' final settlement offer was unacceptible.

His decision was made known by Mr. Cross in a very brief letter mailed to D. W. Myers, City Solicitor of Elyria, who has been associated with Mr. Mouser as one of the two directing heads of the rate fight for the cities.

Letter of Refusal

"This company will not accept your second proposal," Mr. Cross wrote, his letter containing no other words except ing the customary salutation and closing expression of courtesy.

He suggested no further peace negotiations, probably because the cities' attorneys, in submitting their proposal,

FEAR 12 SEAMEN LOST AFTER QUITTING SHIP

Leave Blazing Vessel in Dories During Howling Snow Storm

Halifax, N. S., April 11—Search of the north Atlantic for 12 seamen, missing from the burned Gloucester, Mass., fishing schooner Commonwealth, was under way today.

A Canadian government steamer, the American cutter Tampa and steamships and shooners off the coast were on the lookout for the 12 men, who left the blazing Commonwealth in three dories off Lahave Banks, 60 miles out.

Eight other men in dories were picked up by the Boston schooner Elizabeth Parker and brought into Shelburne, N. S. They feared that their mates could not live in the open dories as a howling snow-torm was blowing when all hands left the side of the burning Commonwealth.

The rescued men were under the care of doctors today as they suffered great hardships in the open boats in zero temperature.

ATTEMPTS TO GET SEPARATE MURDER TRIAL

Courtroom Crowded as Mrs. Snyder and Gray Appear Before Judge

New York, April 11— Counsel for Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder, attractive young housewife accused with her paramour, Henry Judd Gray, of brutally slaying the woman's husband, Albert Snyder, an art editor, today made their first move to save her from the electric chair when they applied to Supreme Court Justice Townsend Scudder to separate the trials of the two defendants. Justice Scudder reserved decision.

The motion for a separate trial was made by Dana Wallace, counsel for Mrs. Snyder.

Gray's attorney, Samuel Miller, opposed the move. So did District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe.

Reserves Decision

Justice Scudder then gave both sides 24 hours to submit briefs, announcing he would reserve decision.

Both Mrs. Snyder and Gray are scheduled to go on trial next Monday charged with first degree murder. They are accused of beating the art editor to death with an iron sash weight on the night of March 20 after Snyder had come home from a party with his wife.

The courtroom in Long Island City was packed and hundreds of persons milled about in the corridors and on the stairways.

Both defendants were in court. Mrs. Snyder nor Gray has spoken a word to the other since their dramatic arrest although they came face to face several times.

SHOVEL REORGANIZATION PLANS NEARLY COMPLETE

Arrangements Also Being Made for Sale of Securities of Concern

Final plans for organization of the new corporation which is to take over management of the Marion Steam Shovel Co. and for sale of securities to be issued in connection with a re-financing program, are nearing completion and will be made public within a few days, according to information coming from the office of the company here today.

The plans are being drawn up by attorneys here and in New York City, both representing W. A. Harriman & Co., the New York investment banking concern which purchased the local industry last week.

Although preferred stock and bonds are to be offered to the public, it is generally predicted in local financial circles that the sale will be of short duration and that all of the security issued will soon be over-subscribed.

Former stockholders of the Marion Steam Shovel Co. and employes in the office and factory will be given preference in the opening sales, it has been announced.

Frank Hall, 30, of 502 W. Columbia-st, and his brother, Harold Hall, 22, who failed to give his place of residence, are in the Wyandot County jail, Upper Sandusky, today awaiting hearing Tuesday on liquor charges following arrest early Sunday morning in a capture of 60 gallons of alleged "white mule" liquor, by Sheriff H. B. Stansbery and Deputy Sheriff Raymond Stansbery, Wyandot County, near Upper Sandusky on the Carey rd.

Officials Hid in Car

Harold Hall was the alleged driver of the Chevrolet and was engaged in "running" liquor from Wyandot, Mich. to Columbus, he said. His supply of gasoline exhausted, he attempted to replenish it at Upper Sandusky and failing called his brother at Marion. In the meantime, Sheriff Stansbery and his deputy found the abandoned car and secluded themselves in it. Near 4:30 o'clock, Hall returned riding with his older brother in the Nash car. They were placed under arrest. The younger Hall will be charged with transportation of liquor. He is said to have confessed his guilt saying that he was on his first trip when captured. The older Hall will face a charge in connection with that to be placed against his brother.

CANTONESE IN DISORDER

Chang Tso Lin Wants Financial Support from United States, He Says

Shanghai, April 11— Military difficulties of the Nationalists attracted greater attention here today than the delivery of the protest of the powers on the Nanking incidents.

Nanking dispatches tonight declare that the Nationalists are in disorderly retreat, fleeing along the Tsinan Pukow Railroad in the direction of Pukow.

The revolutionary flags which have been prominent in Nanking and Shanghai are disappearing, indicating that the public may again be preparing to switch its support to the victors.

The Nationalists have protested to the British consular authorities against British airplanes flying over the Woosung forts and Kiangnan Arsenal, declaring that the air rights are Chinese even though concessions are leased to the foreigners.

The note is understood here to present a strong protest over the Nanking outrages, with demand for indemnity and a stern warning against future attacks of the Nanking character — but there is no "ultimatum" and no threat of sanctions.

The notes of protest which have been sent to the Nationalists are understood to make the following demands:

1.—An apology in writing from Chang Kai Shek, military commander of the Nationalist forces at Nanking;

2.—Reparation for personal and property damages;

3.—Punishment of those guilty of the Nanking murders and attacks.

The notes also state that appropriate measures will be taken if demands are

Mother and Babes Killed When Auto Is Hit By Train

Mrs. Willard Parker, 26, and Daughters, Catherine, 3, and Roberta, Four Months, Die in Pennsylvania Crossing Accident South of City

HUSBAND, DRIVING FORD COUPE, ESCAPES

Columbus Family, Formerly from Marion, Figure in Grim Tragedy Enroute Here To Spend Week-End with Relatives

TRIPLE funeral services for Mrs. Iscah Minerva Parker, 26, wife of Willard Parker, and her two infant daughters, Catherine, 3, and Roberta, four months, killed when a speeding northbound passenger train struck their car at the Prospect-rd crossing just south of the city Saturday night will be held here Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The rites will be conducted at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Zimmer, 890 Woodrow-av, step-father and mother of Mr. Parker. Dr. U. S. Davis, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church, will have charge. Burial will be in Marion Cemetery.

Attending the funeral services will be Mr. Parker, 26, husband and father of the family, who was driving the Ford coupe in which his wife and babies met their death. Mr. Parker sustained only minor injuries and is expected to be able to leave City Hospital this afternoon.

Mrs. Parker and the oldest child died in City Hospital a few minutes after they were taken there in the C. H. Curtis & Co. ambulance. The baby was found dead near the unconscious form of the father.

The mother and oldest child died of fractures of the skull and the baby's death was attributed to shock and injuries about the back and chest, according to reports of physicians.

The accident occurred while Mr. and Mrs. Parker and their two children were enroute to Marion from Columbus to spend the week-end with Mr. Parker's step-father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Zimmer and Mrs. Parker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Byers, 351 Franconia-av.

Stop in Prospect

On their way to Marion Mr. and Mrs. Parker stopped in Prospect to visit Mrs. Parker's sister, Mrs. C. L. Betz. Learning that Mrs. Betz had come to Marion Mr. and Mrs. Parker continued their journey to this city.

Accounts of the accident differ in many respects.

According to Mr. Parker he drove his car slowly onto the approach to the Pennsylvania crossing. A slow freight moving south had just passed when he reached it. Another freight on the same track and moving in the same direction was moving slowly toward the crossing.

Mr. Parker explained that his wife looked down the track and saw the second freight train and told him that he had plenty of time to get across.

Eyewitness' Story

As the front wheels of his car reached the second track the Pennsylvania passenger train No. 422 speeding into Marion on its run from Columbus to Sandusky shot out from back of the first freight train, according to Mr. Parker. That is all he recalls.

Another version of the tragedy is given by Miss Ruth Cromer junior in Pleasant Township High School, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Cromer, Canaan-pk, who with Herman Sickel, Caledonia, were following the Parker machine into Marion.

According to Miss Cormer the car in which she was riding was between 50

Secretary Hoover Knows How to Pass His Jobs On

He Loves Responsibility and Has Heaps of It Thrown Upon Him

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, April 11—Secretary of Commerce Hoover's lucky in being a super executive, who knows how to pass his jobs—

Yes, jobs. Plural. Very much so.

—who knows how to pass his jobs' details along to subordinates, to attend to and worry over, leaving nothing but the responsibility to fall on his shoulders.

HERBERT HOOVER

Hoover just loves responsibility.

If he were a detail man, the prodigious number and variety of his duties would drive him cuckoo.

Not all the rest of the cabinet members put together have so many different kinds of work wished onto 'em. Each has a strenuous stunt, in its way, but it's a one-man stunt, not an army of specialists—and no two alike, either.

Hoover has to be a past master of nearly everything.

"OH, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur may exclaim:

"I am a cook and a captain bold,
And the mate of the Nancy brig,
And a bo'sn tight, and a midshipmite,
And the crew of the captain's gig."

Quite a few lines of endeavor for Secretary Wilbur to qualify as an expert in. But it will be noted that they're all nautical, with the possible exception of the cook, and even he undoubtedly is a sea-cook.

JUST so all up and down the line. Secretary of War Davis heads a big department, but it's purely military. Harry New has nothing to stew about but the postoffice. Nobody asks Attorney General Sargent to be anything but a lawyer or Secretary Kellogg to be anything but a diplomat. There's nothing to distract John J. Davis' attention from labor problems.

Bill Jardine concentrates solely on farming and Hoover helps him with that. Besides Indian affairs, Secretary of the Interior Work once had patents and mining to look after, but Hoover took the patent office and bureau of mines off his hands and included them in his own department.

Secretary Mellon's the only other man who has an extra burden to bear—besides being financial dictator. Prohibition enforcement (?)!

And it irks him sorely.

BUT gewhillikens! — look at Hoover!

As secretary of commerce, it's his business to keep the country prosperous. He has to look after foreign as well as domestic trade.

He's a scientist. He weighs the earth and he weighs atoms. He's an earthquake expert. He's an electrician. He's an oceanographer. He's a chemist.

He has charge of lighthouses and navigation and steamboat inspection.

He's radio czar—all the more so since the creation of a radio commission which can't function without him.

He promotes aviation, takes the census, issues patents, encourages salmon fishing in Alaskan waters, develops rubber production in the tropics, and, as head of the bureau of mines, is the government's fall guy whenever there's a coal strike.

He's a member of the board of the Smithsonian Institution and the Council of National Defense and the National Screw Thread Commission and the Federal Board for Vocational Education and the Inter-American High Commission and the World War Foreign Debt Commission.

THESE simply are a few of the more obvious things Hoover has assimilated into his department of commerce. It's at least twice as large a department as when he was appointed head of it.

He can't see anything without wanting to manage it.

It's a commonplace in Washington that there be but one cabinet member in a few years, if Hoover keeps his portfolio, and he'll be it, as Secretary of Everything.

It's No Easy Job Raising Muskrats; Farm Turned Into Virtual Fortress

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Marion Star

WAUSEON, O., April 11—Every farmer has his problems, and the muskrat farmer is not exempt from his share.

There are cats and owls and thieves to reckon with. Feeding, housing and marketing present their puzzles.

So declare Dr. R. O. Buck, O. H. Buck, his father, and Frank Bartlett, owners of a five-acre muskrat farm here, stocked with 5,000 rats. The truth is, there may be more rats on the farm than that, the owners say, for in three years the stock has been left to increase almost undisturbed. But there are at least 5,000 animals on the place. Of that the owners are very sure, and there may be as many as 8,000.

Their Enemies

If it were not for the predatory animals and birds, and the nomadic habits of muskrats, the owners of this unique farm would have little to do.

Around the entire farm there is a high wire fence. Half way up on the fence is a band of tin, about the whole farm. That is to baffle the muskrats in their attempts to climb over the top of the fence.

Then around the top of the fence is a copper wire, a single strand. It carries one side of an electric current. Cats, which have a failing for muskrat flesh, have learned something about this electric wire. On many occasions the senior Mr. Buck says he has found electrocuted cats along the fence in the morning.

Even Owls Come!

Owls come for miles to snatch up a young rat. The great horned owls, of which there are few in this part of the country, frequently make their calls. On tops of the fence posts steel traps are set to catch these. Managers of the farm say they have caught two in recent months that measured nearly five feet from tip to tip of wings.

Overlooking the farm is a high tower in which a watchman guards against thieves at night. On dark nights an electric search light plays from the tower and floods the boundaries of the farm with light.

The housing problem has been solved by the construction of deep trenches, seven feet deep, 14 feet wide and 600 feet long. These are filled with water with an electric pump.

Where Muskrats Live

In the banks of these the rats build their homes, and during the winter come out under the ice to feed. At first food, corn, carrots and sugar beets, was dropped into holes cut in the ice so the food would be delivered right at the doors of the muskrats. But now it is heaped in piles in the field, and the rats are compelled to go marketing. In one winter 1,400 bushels of corn alone was fed. This year the amount will be a great deal larger.

Next year the owners of the farm expect to reap their first harvest. Close to a thousand animals may be killed. The carcasses will be packed and shipped for muskrat dinners in the larger cities. The soft jackets of the animals will go to furriers to be made into high class coats for milady.

HILL EXPLAINS VOTE ON TWO STATE PROPOSALS

Says Action in Keeping with Economy Policy; Both Measures Adopted

Belief that the necessity of holding public expenditures and taxes down to the lowest possible figure is of utmost importance was expressed here today by H. E. Hill, Marion County representative in the state legislature, in explaining why he voted against two bills which came up for consideration recently.

One provided for a one-half mill state tax levy and the other authorized increased pay for judges in the various county and district courts. Both measures were adopted and are now in the hands of the governor awaiting his signature.

"Although the half-mill levy was a part of the legislature's financial program, I could not see my way clear to approve it," Mr. Hill stated today.

He expressed the opinion that efforts to establish economy and efficiency should prevail in both state and local governments, especially at this time when lack of funds in the public exchequer has resulted in serious difficulties.

Tell him that the quick easy way to put pounds of solid flesh on his bones is to take McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Tell him it's the modern way to take nasty tasting, stomach upsetting cod liver oil—that these tablets are rich in vitimines and besides helping him to fill out his flat chest and sunken cheeks and neck that the vitalizing vitimines in McCoy's will make him strong and vigorous and give him more ambition.

Tell him that he can get 60 tablets for 60 cents at Bradley Drug Co., Henney & Cooper's or any druggist anywhere and that if he isn't delighted after a 30 day test he can have his money back.—Adv.

David Belasco, the Dean of the American Theatre writes:

"The voice is to the actor what the chisel is to the sculptor. He must beware of dulling its qualities. Naturally I am vitally concerned about the voices of my players, so I always advise the one cigarette that I discovered many years ago that does not impair control of the subtlest vocal shadings or cause huskiness or harshness. I mean the 'Lucky Strike.' It is the player's best friend."

Why Not a Compulsory Stop Law?

The awful accident at the Pennsylvania railroad crossing a short distance south of this city, Saturday night, which caused the deaths of a young mother and her two little baby daughters and the injury of the husband and father, emphasizes once more the wisdom of never attempting to cross a steam or electric railroad track without first looking to see if a train or electric car is approaching from either way of the track.

The crossing at which the tragedy occurred is an unusually dangerous one. It was noted in our news columns, Monday, that it is one of the crossings specified in State Highway Director Schlesinger's grade crossing elimination program, which means that it is one of the most dangerous in the state. Such is the lay of the land that it is especially dangerous to traffic approaching this city, and this danger is greatly intensified when there is a train or cut of cars nearby to obstruct the view or detract attention from an approaching train.

There are six states in the union which have laws making it compulsory for all vehicular traffic to come to a complete stop before crossing a railroad track. In some the first offense is punishable by a fine of from $10 to $15, the size of the fines increasing with each repetition of the offense. The law of this kind with the most teeth in it, we are told by a well-known local railroad official, is that of the state of Kansas, which carries an imprisonment clause as well. The result is that there are fewer accidents at grade crossings in Kansas than in any other state, railroad mileage considered, in the union. So general is the observance of the law in all six states, however, that there has been a marked decrease in grade crossing accidents in all of them. The laws have been rigidly enforced, so rigidly, in fact, that it has become almost second nature for drivers to come to a stop before attempting to cross a railroad track.

Had there been such a law in this state for sufficient time for drivers to have educated themselves to its observance, we probably would not have had occasion to chronicle Monday the death of this mother and her two babes. Six states have tried the stop plan and it has proved very satisfactory. Why should not Ohio be the seventh state to adopt such a law?

Reading the New Testament.

This is the day set apart for the reading at the Central Christian church of the New Testament, in its entirety. From an early hour this morning, one reader has followed another, and this will go on continuously until every word from the beginning of the Gospel According to Saint Matthew till the closing verse of Revelations—"The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be unto you all. Amen."—has been reached and read.

This method of reading the Bible can hardly be held to be ideal. In fact, we believe we are safe in saying that, were the matter put to Pastor Groves, of the Central Christian congregation, he would not recommend it as a desirable plan for Bible study. But, as we have been told and understand, such is not the purpose of today's continuous reading. What those responsible for the plan have in mind is to demonstrate that reading the New Testament through is not the mighty undertaking it is assumed to be by those who have not read it. Their purpose is to demonstrate that the New Testament can be read throughout in about thirteen hours, and then put it up to the non-reader that no one can afford to forego the reading of the greatest story ever told—that of the life here on earth of the greatest Figure of all history, both sacred and profane.

From week to week we print in this paper a list of the week's best sellers, but it may be noted that they are specified as the best sellers of the week among works of fiction. For such works of fiction—these week's best sellers—there is a demand for a week, for a month, possibly for a year, but even while the demand for them is at its highest tide, it is not in the same class with the demand for the Holy Bible, the New Testament of which is the world's greatest work of fact. The demand for it has exceeded that of any other work for generations past, and will exceed that for any other work for centuries to come. As the Lord Jesus Christ, after over 1,900 years, stands out in a preeminence above and before any and all figures in history, so stands out the Holy Bible above and before any and all works written by man.

To read the New Testament is an education. Not to read it is tantamount to a crime to oneself. It should not only be read, but also be studied; be thought over. It is so fascinatingly interesting that it will repay the time devoted to its study. And if the continuous reading of it today brings home to non-readers of the Bible how comparatively simple a matter is the reading of this portion of the Bible at least, all the effort expended in the undertaking of today by the Central Christian people will be repaid a thousandfold, for the New Testament is the chart which makes plain the way to the Light.

The great cause of education is once more out in the open. At least, the sand-boxes have been repaired and placed outdoors.

Lincoln Steffens, so-called leader in "liberal" thought, told a gathering of his associates recently that he was finally convinced that the most of the ideas long entertained by him were "bunk." Link will never get into an argument with a lot of people on that proposition.

At times we can not help feeling that this "presidential" stuff is a bit overdone.

A strike, general in its scope throughout the United States, has been proposed to "save" Vanzetti and Sacco from execution. That kind of a plan would strike some people as a method for solidifying sentiment behind the death sentence.

Vagrant Verse.

THE BELLS OF YOUTH.

The bells of youth are ringing in the gateways of the South:
The bannerets of green are now unfurled;
Spring has risen with a laugh, a wild rose in her mouth,
And is singing, singing, singing through the world.

The bells of youth are ringing in all the silent places,
The primrose and the celandine are out;
Children run a laughing with joy upon their faces,
The west wind follows after with a shout.

The bells of youth are ringing from the forests to the mountains,
From the meadows to the moorlands, hark their ringing!
Ten thousand thousand splashing rills and fern-dappled fountains
Are flinging wide the song of youth and onward flowing, singing!

The bells of youth are ringing in the gateways of the South:
The bannerets of green are now unfurled;
Spring has risen with a laugh, a wild rose in her mouth,
And is singing, singing, singing through the world!

LOOK WHO'S HERE!

Vivid Life at Sixty for All.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

On his sixtieth birthday a great banker and patron of the arts said:

"Life is as vivid to me, the great adventure of living as thrilling, as it was in my early youth."

Congratulations, Mr. Kahn, and may you live many more years!

This remarkable man, Mr. Otto H. Kahn, is known everywhere in the world of finance. He is the patron saint of the Metropolitan opera in New York. He is a promoter of music and art and good government. He is very rich, lives in a beautiful home, and rides in the finest of automobiles.

For a quarter of a century, at least, this man has been a power. He has or can have everything he wants.

Many men would be ruined by experiences which have served merely to make Mr. Kahn increasingly useful as a citizen. He has not grown arrogant, mean, miserly, crabbed, hard and useless. He has no suspicions or hatreds. He is just a human being, bright and sprightly as a boy, generous and kind to everybody.

Mr. Kahn has not grown stale, bored and unhappy. To him life is vivid and real. His enthusiasms make life a thrilling experience.

Mind you, it is not his wealth; it is not his power in the financial world. It is the every-day living; the experience common to all men—these are the inspirations of his mind and being.

We don't need to be rich or powerful to be happy. Life should be vivid and thrilling to everybody. There is so much to hold the interest and keep us happily engaged that no one of us has an excuse not to be thrilled by every-day experiences.

Good health has much to do with the way we feel about life. But it must not be overlooked that our mental attitude toward the every-day experiences, has much to do with our health and vigor.

The minute you get bored and feel stupid and dull, your heart grows labored in its action. Good circulation demands the stimulus of the emotions. Happy thoughts are better than any tonic ever sold in a bottle.

Keep your human interests. Don't permit yourself to lose contact with the things which appeal to you. Be young by keeping young. Do not judge the affairs of today by the rules of another generation. Let life be vivid to you—Mr. Kahn has no monopoly of that privilege.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

In a late issue, perhaps one of the most famous of the new crop, one is moved by the words of a thoughtful man—a character in the book.

"But what I know," he says "is that there is more in life than anything that men can do or say, that there is an immortal spirit whose history, whose struggle, whose victories and defeats give the whole meaning to this life which is only one short paragraph in the book of that greater life. There are our fleshly conditions and we must obey them, but through them, always, we must be waiting, listening, forever at attention to catch the movement of that other life. Your honor, your courage, your self-sacrifice, your gentleness, kindliness, if you lose these things you had as well be a sheep's carcass hanging in any butcher's. That I know to be true."

Well, isn't that about the final word? One might say something else—but nothing more.

Inventors say that television by radio is just around the corner. It is predicted that boxing bouts and similar spectacles will soon be brought into the home by radio pictures. If some of the jazz doesn't look better than it sounds, all this will be a questionable invention.

Six light cruisers are yet to be built under the 1924 naval building program. Bids have been opened. The warships will cost $11,000,000 each. The price of one cruiser would build eleven beautiful college buildings, or eleven beautiful high schools, or eleven hospitals or eleven magnificent homes for homeless old ladies, or eleven institutions for the care of motherless and fatherless children.

The price of a single cruiser spent in Berea, Kentucky, or in one of the other useful mountain schools would go far to change the whole life of a section of the South.

Dinner Stories.

"I want my hair cut, and no talk," said a 200-pound man as he walked into a barber's shop and sat down.

"The——" commenced the man in the apron.

"No talk, I tell you!" shouted the heavy man. "Just a plain haircut. I've read all the papers, and don't want any news. Start right away now."

The man in the apron obeyed. When he had finished, the customer rose from the chair and surveyed himself in the glass.

"Good heavens!" he exclaimed. "It's really true, then? You barbers can't do your work properly unless you talk."

"I don't know," said the man in the apron. "You must ask the barber. He'll be in presently. I'm a grocer's assistant, come in for a shave."

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, April 12—Broadway seems longer a street of hilarious antics. It has grown sedate and forbidding. A little of the old horse-play will bring the police wagon. The other evening a group of legiates were trundled to a station for sliding down cafe banisters.

Bringing a cabby in to dine and then giving his nag around the block results in a night in a cell. An impromptu quartets singing lursting into "Sweet Adeline" brings the proprietor on the run with a threatening shillelagh.

In other days every cafe permitted a little harmless rowdiness. Diners enjoyed it. The bald-headed man was likely to find his head a target for a barrage of bread balls, and he would retaliate good naturedly by ordering a round of drinks for the house.

Table d'hotes featuring vin ordinaire were places of easy familiarity. Patrons moved from table to table. There was understanding that everybody was merely out for a prankish evening and there was never a show of fisticuffs. Madame would leave the cashier's cage to join in.

In these days it is a quiet night along the way that women do not engage in a smashing party over some fancied slight. A sly word is likely to wind up in a free-for-all. In one avenue a gentleman was knocked down because he had mistaken a lady for an old friend.

He had gone to her table and extended his hand. Her escort did the rest, nor would he apologize when the familiarity was explained. The truth is cafe patronage has greatly changed. Denizens of the deep come to the surface at night and the cafes are their playing ground.

They are there more for business than pleasure. They are keeping track of the latest in human dissipation and the viewing thereof with a careful eye for blackmail and robbery. Innocent fun cramps their style and consequently they scowl at it. Hooch, too, hasn't the mellowing quality it once had. The quality is argumentative.

In one of Park avenue's finest mansions there is a room incongruously out of keeping with the rest of the bizzare furnishings. It has a rag carpet, an old time loud ticking clock with a nosegay painted on the door, a horse hair sofa, several willow farm porch chairs, a hanging coal oil lamp and a red carpeted brick door step. It is where the master spends much leisure time. "I'm a country boy," he says, "and I never got over it."

Divorced, but friendly, couples are plentiful in New York. I ran across a pair of them dining together the other evening. "We have dinner once a month to discuss the children," said the ex-wife. And added: "Also I receive my alimony check."

In a new big department store there are no counter stools, for customers and clerks are not permitted to sit down while on duty. The idea is to speed up sales. For those who grow tired rest rooms are provided with tea and cigarets.

Harold Ross, the editor of the sophisticated magazine, the New Yorker, is an Aspen, Colorado, boy. The actor who really started eccentric jazz dancing was Frisco, born in Dubuque, Iowa. One of the kings of the Broadway underworld came from a whistle stop in Kansas. A writer who makes a living anticipating fashions for men is a product of Holt, Missouri. Sinclair Lewis hails from Sauk Center, Wisconsin. The Rialto's most blase juvenile, Jay Gould, is from Muskegon, Michigan. A director of racy, musical revues came out of Lost Creek, West Virginia, ten years ago. Ben Ali Haggin, a real life Adolphe Menjou, was born on a Kentucky farm. The fellow who opened the second night club in town hails from an Arkansas village. Indeed, most of our ultra sophistication came from the various wide places in the road. Even Texas Guinan baked mud pies in Austin, Texas.

Who's Who and Why.

EDGAR A. G. PROCHNIK.

Edgar A. G. Prochnik is the envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the Austrian government to the United States stationed at Washington. He was sent to the United States in 1921 as charge d'affairs of the Austrian legation. Dr. Prochnik received his present appointment from his government in 1925, and he is the first minister from Austria since the recall in 1916 of Dr. Theodore Dumba, the Austro-Hungarian envoy in the United States when this country entered the World war.

The new envoy, speaking of the marked changes which have taken place in Austria, said recently:

"We must take into consideration that in Austria-Hungary of before the war had a population of some 52,000,000. Today the population of Austria is only 6,500,000.

"Before the war we could sell the goods that we made to our own population; now we have to make treaties and go through a number of formalities that exist between ourselves and the states that at one time belonged to us.

"We are not making any political treaties whatsoever. What few treaties we have entered acted since the war have been solely economic. We have made treaties or reached agreements with all of the neighboring states and full reciprocal accord is registered to our commercial transactions. We do not want, nor do we need, to make political treaties, is we can readily understand at this time that our one mission is to make friends and keep them.

"But the Austria of today can not be compared to the early post-war Austria. Then we were in complete turmoil, not knowing what would happen next. Life was a whirl; a series of anxieties.

"Today Austria has settled down to a program of hard work and industry. Our economic plans are before us, and it will be a task to see them through. The country is not grown for the size of the population, and we have to depend largely on the outside markets. The result will depend largely on them."

Today's Worst Story.

BY WILL ROGERS.

I reckon it's all right to make jokes about serious things, ain't it? Well, anybody knows that most jokes are about serious things anyhow. Did you ever notice that the most popular cracks on the stage are about graveyards and cemeteries and marriage and such things?

There's nothing much more serious for old fashioned people than breaking up a home with a divorce or something. Of course it seems it isn't so serious now as it used to be, but still I can't help thinking that it's pretty serious anyhow. Especially for the kids.

So here's the joke. The judge says to the little girl:

"Now, you know that your parents are going to separate, and they're settling up everything and it's up to me to say which of them is going to keep you. They agree about the division of all the property and junk, but both of them wants you, and I got to decide. Now which one do you want to go with and live with?"

The kid looked out the window for a long time, thinking it over. Then she says:

"Can I ask a question that will help me to decide? 'Cause if you can answer me, then I'll tell you right off which one."

"Go ahead, kid," says His Honor.

"Which of 'em gets the car?"—Copyright, 1927.

Q. What prime minister of Italy was the first one in modern times to invoke the name of God in a meeting of parliament? J. H.

A. Benito Mussolini, in November, 1922, said: "May God help me to carry to a victorious end my arduous task." He thus broke an ancient precedent.

Q. What makes milk appear white? H. R. K.

A. Milk appears white because of the reflection of light by the casein, and by the fat globules in emulsion.

Q. When does a letter come under the protection of the government—when the stamp is placed on it, or when it is put in the letter box? C. R. R.

A. The post-office department says that mail does not come under the protection of the government until it is dropped in the mail box. Simply placing a postage stamp on a letter or package does not in any way insure protection by the United States postal service, nor is the government in any way responsible for it.

Q. I notice that people abroad use their forks in a different way from ours. Should Americans conform to their custom when traveling? G. B. H.

A. From the standpoint of a foreigner, most Americans appear to a disadvantage while traveling abroad because of the fact that the Americans either observe their custom of changing the fork from the left to the right hand, or they conform to the European custom. Because of lack of training, it is difficult for an American to use his fork with the left hand. The result is that he appears awkward. Each traveler has to determine for himself from which standpoint he objects the least to appear awkward.

Q. What are the "stars" made of in the "Tower" chamber of Mammoth cave? P. S. B.

A. The geological survey says that they are crystals of white gypsum that sparkle when the chamber is lighted.

Q. At what temperature does glass melt? H. W.

A. The bureau of standards says that the glass of which an ordinary bottle is made begins to soften at about 600 degrees C., and continually becomes softer as the temperature is increased until at about 1300 degrees C. it is very fluid.

"FATHER" TALKS TO "MIKE"

Emile Berliner congratulates the microphone on its 50th birthday and an inset of the first "mike," which he invented in 1877.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Your friend "Mike," more professionally known as the microphone, celebrating his birthday on April 14, is half a century old. Just 50 years ago, Emile Berliner, Washington scientist, filed his first patent application for the little invention that has come to be "the tie that binds"—not only communities together, but now, whole continents.

In 1877, Emile Berliner, erstwhile German immigrant lad, laboring with his soap box transmitters and tin can telephone, conceived the idea of a loose contact, until then a daring innovation in electro-magnetics, and after a sudden flash of inspiration, he made a little toy drum, a steel dress button and a sewing needle talk!

Berliner gave to the telephone, and now to radio, its microphone or transmitter. Its battery current, and its continuous current transformer. This transformer is that which boosts the current to any volume desired, and, in radio, it is that which also connects the voice at the microphone to the powerful carrying current which throws the radio waves out on the ether.

WAS SO STIFF AND SORE HE COULD HARDLY BEND

As good as new next morning after simple home treatment

After tramping around all day with wet feet while out gunning, a Philadelphia sportsman found himself so stiff and lame he could hardly bend.

"I went to work but had to come home," he writes. "I applied Sloan's Liniment freely and went to bed. I was as good as new next morning, thanks to the quick and sure action of Sloan's."

Sloan's gives real relief because it doesn't just deaden the pain. It helps the body to throw off the cause of the pain.

Apply a little lightly, without rubbing. Right away the stiffness and pain ease up, as fresh healing blood is sent to the sore spots.

Get a bottle of Sloan's today and have it on hand for the first emergency. All druggists—85 cents.

A Popular Style—
An Unusual Price

THERE is a "dare" in the price of this suite for anyone who wants the very finest quality of Hepplewhite-styled Furniture for less than they expect to pay for it.

"The Oxford" by Berkey and Gay, realizes the supremely graceful lines and proportions of this master's finest work—which harmonizes so well with the simplicity of modern rooms. Vivacity adds to the charm of the suite. Wonderfully figured crotch walnut, butt walnut and maple burl, generously employed, are so contrasted that an unforgettable tonal background is obtained. The nut-brown finish, carefully hand-rubbed, deepens this effect.

The high-lighting, the gems of maple burl onlay, the choice little triumphs of hand-carving add inimitable touches to this suite, which the price, to our mind, makes almost irresistible.

When King George, who is a real man, gets over laughing, he might well suggest as a successor to Stonehaven some gentleman possessed in some slightly less degree of a feeling of importance.

Un-Americanism Rebuked.

Last week we came upon two utterances by two men in the public eye the sentiment of which was so far removed from the pacifist and internationalist drivel with which the country has been flooded of late, utterances which were so manifestly in line with the true spirit of Americanism, that we can not forbear making reference to them.

One was made in Columbus by Senator Frank B. Willis who said, in part, in an address delivered to a joint session of the two houses of the general assembly:

"Pacifists that were crying out to have our little army disbanded and our ships sunk are now glad we have the means to protect our missionaries and other citizens in China * * *

"It is fortunate for the country and the world that the radicals, who get their viewpoint from foreigners and their inspiration from Moscow and the Third Internationale, are in a hopeless minority under the American flag * * *

"Some people deem it an evidence of profound thought and high sense of justice to assume that our country is always wrong; that its motives are unworthy, and that its own citizens and officials are liars and crooks.

"By these intelligentsia, any wild story told by a revolutionary half breed, or an excited Chinaman is regarded as conclusive proof, while the careful investigations and detailed sworn reports of our own citizens and officials are discarded as utterly unworthy of belief. Why assume that our country is always wrong? Why always be against the United States and strive to give aid and comfort to the other side?"

The other and earlier address was that made to the student body of the University of Maryland by Colonel Hanford Mac Nider, assistant secretary of war, upon the tenth anniversary of America's entrance into the World war.

"Certain types of internationalists," said Colonel Mac Nider, "continually cry out that those who are responsible for carrying out the national defense act and who are struggling to build the balanced program for which it calls, are endeavoring to militarize the nation, to throw it into war.

"Our army is the smallest in the world. Let them go to work reducing somewhere else, if they must. Let them worry about some of those countries that start wars—that indictment can not be placed against America. All thoughtful men and women look forward to the day when war can be outlawed. America is doing her part. She has set the outstanding example in disarmament, but she can go little further until there is shown an honest and corresponding disposition on the part of the rest of the world."

Colonel Mac Nider declared that every foreign suggestion for the conduct of world affairs which the United States does not immediately adopt, "chases hundreds of native-born agitators to the platforms of our schools and clubs to denounce American policy."

"The popular attitude on the public platform now is to apologize for America and all things American," he said. "We are overrun with organizations of native internationalists whose favorite sport is to hold us and our international dealings up to scorn and derision. They are in a constant state of amazement that we should want to abide by the faith of our fathers.

"If we were to believe them we would be a hard and sordid people indeed. It would be easier to persuade us of our shortcomings if we did not find the very people they hold up to us as good examples clamoring at our doors for admission as Americans. The immigrant seems willing to take his chance with a citizenship which these American-born agitators of ours do not seem to value. Perhaps some mutually agreeable exchanges could be effected."

"We are harangued," continued the colonel, "by societies which boast long and fantastic names, and urged to risk our claim on our coveted possessions of peace and freedom by throwing our defenses into the sea. They tell us that America is sorely aggravating every other nation on earth by our unsympathetic attitude on foreign matters. They assure us in one breath that we are aligning the world against us, and in the next that we should be ashamed of ourselves for spending a penny or giving a thought to the protection of the lives of American citizens."

These are utterances which should appeal to every true American, and we should hear more of the same tenor. The time is past for dallying in meeting the claims and assertions of that peculiar brand of American citizen who would tear down his own governmental institutions to build up those of foreign lands. There are always those who in their simple-mindedness and belief in the common honesty of others may be misled into assuming that statements which go uncontroverted may be accepted as true. There are those who ever wish to link their fortunes in the matter of beliefs with the majority. There are those who persistently let others do their thinking for them. In a government in which the majority rules, there is always danger in letting propaganda unfavorable to the government go uncontroverted. If permitted, it may go too far for the good of such a government. It is conceivable that it might lead to the overthrowing of such a government.

Vagrant Verse.

ONE OF THE PROFESSORS

We had her every day at nine
To teach us Latin prose,
But once a month, at half past four
She gave a "tea" for those
Who cared to go to "tea" with her
(She lived outside the town
And had a dryad's sort of house,
Leaf green and tree trunk brown),
And there she grew grape hyacinths
And strange small flowers like those
And there she had a Persian cat
Who entertained at "teas"
By letting her put three white mice
Deep in his yellow fur
And sat all unconcerned without
Even altering his purr.
And then there was a little girl,
Whom she was bringing up,
Who curtsied when she passed the cakes
Or handed one a cup,
And oh, of course, the dog who spun
A saucer plate with his nose!
Strange I remember these but not
One word of Latin prose!

PREPAREDNESS.

Colds Easily Spread.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Lots of people do not believe in germs. They enjoy the benefits of the good germs and are the daily victims of the bad ones.

Hardly a day passes without having the body marred in some way by germ action. Just what do I mean by this? Every pustule of the skin, every aching tooth, every diseased tonsil, every catarrhal condition of the nose and throat, and almost every inflammatory process, are due to germ invasion.

Fortunately for us, most of our infections are of small consequence. The invading germ is an inactive one or the powers of the body are sufficient to resist any serious effect from such infection.

During the past winter many persons suffered from colds. A given case might begin with a sore throat. Later the nose would begin to run. The next day, perhaps the eyes would be inflamed. While the eye inflammation was prominent the nasal symptoms might be forgotten. As soon as the eyes felt better the trouble appeared to jump back to the nose.

All these symptoms were the result of germ invasion. We don't know much about the germs which produce the colds. We know more about the germs responsible for typhoid fever, diphtheria, and other serious ailments, but we do believe that the time will come when the germs producing these more common symptoms will be understood. When that time comes we will learn how to control and escape the common cold.

It is a great pity that persons who have colds are so careless about themselves. Neglect of their own bodies is equaled only by their neglect of the safety of their friends. It is a very easy thing to convey the contagion of the cold from the infected person to one who is yet free from symptoms of the nose and throat may readily infect another member of the family.

One feels miserable with a cold, but not quite bad enough to go to bed. I have sometimes wished that the symptoms of a cold were a little more pronounced than they are. This would cause a victim to go home and go to bed. To do so is sure to shorten his own cold and his confinement at home protects his friends who would come in contact with him otherwise.

If a cold were taken in hand immediately upon the observance of the symptoms the trouble would not be jumping from part to part. The eyes would be likely to escape the vicious action of these germs. Other parts of the body would be safer.

Of course, I have mentioned but a few of the effects of germ action. We should lead such lives as to guard against any evil effects germs might produce. Cleanliness of hands and body, simple living, exercise, sunlight, plenty of sleep in a well ventilated room, peace of mind—in these we have a means of escape from germ attacks.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Competition has produced the greatest variety of [illegible] and the most remarkable service the world has ever seen. Wonderful railroad trains traveling [illegible] from Chicago to New York in twenty hours and that cross the continent in a few days are the result of competition. New angles of service are constantly developing. In Atlantic City a noted hotel furnishes cameras to all guests so that [illegible] may record [illegible] photographically. [illegible] providing anything, anywhere [illegible].

Does advertising pay? Ask the British government. The British government is one of the world's largest advertisers. It has a $5,000,000 appropriation [illegible]. England puts on an industrial fair. It spent $125,000 to get buyers from other countries to visit the fair. Is that a lot of money? Does it pay? Let's see. At the latest fair over [illegible] attended. They bought $10,000,000 worth of British goods.

For two years a certain man by the name of Linney went about with a leather harness braced with steel girded about his neck. He thought his neck was broken. He put it on after an accident. The other day Linney took off the harness. He found his neck wasn't broken at all. He could twist his head in all directions.

So with the body so with the spirit. There are a lot of useful and sweet fine things we think we can not do because we have grown into the habit of thinking we can not do them. We have gradually accumulated a harness, braced with steel. It cramps our style. We can do many things—things that we want to do, things that will bring happiness—if we will but break loose.

The supreme penalty for wrong-doing is the penalty of not being believed in by our friends, by those we care for most. Men who turn from wrong-doing to right living have this penalty to pay. It is inescapable. In time it can be paid in full. It is a slow process.

Who's Who and Why.

ETHELBERT STEWART.

Ethelbert Stewart was appointed United States commissioner of labor in 1920 after having been connected with the United States bureau of labor since 1887. Prior to that he was the editor of various newspapers. Stewart has visited the principal countries of South America and Europe studying immigration, labor conditions and legislation. In 1919 he was sent to England by the department of labor on the organization of the industrial conference of the League of Nations. Stewart was born at Chicago, April 22, 1857.

Speaking of workmen's compensation legislation, he recently voiced opposition to lump sum payments. He said:

"My opposition to the lump-sum settlement is for the purpose of protecting the very foundation and principles of compensation legislation. And while I am perfectly willing to admit that the best results secured from lump-sum settlements are where they have been turned over to the rehabilitating and retaining forces, I am still not willing to concede that such use of these funds was ever intended by the advocates of workmen's compensation law.

"Broadly speaking, workmen's compensation was intended to wipe out the old defenses of the liability law and do in a more intelligent manner the things that were generally understood to be covered by the earlier concepts of liability. Granted that that idea has expanded, I think you will agree with me that no damage suit lawyer of the old days with all of his nerve ever had the cheek to ask for a fund to be expended in retraining the injured man for a new vocation; and I do not believe that it was ever intended to retrain the injured workman for a new occupation at the expense of the weekly allowance for the wife and children.

"I do not want to be misunderstood. I most heartily endorse the idea of rehabilitation and retraining. But I do not want to see it done at the expense of the weekly compensation which was intended for the support of the family of the injured worker."

Dinner Stories.

It took a great deal of courage. She was his ideal. Soft, fluffy, beautiful. Just the kind of a big-hearted doll he wanted. But he finally made up his mind to propose.

"What would you do," he asked, "if I asked you to be my wife? What would be the outcome?"

"It depends," was the reply, "very much on the income."

As they came panting into the yard they called, "Oh, Mammy, Mammy, Grandpop done got et up by a b'ar."

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, April 11.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and received a pleasant greeting from Nellie Revell out in California and a score other birthday greetings or I would have forgotten the gloomy truth. I am past [illegible] gray and not so spry. And a letter from E. W. Howe saying he is enroute to the city.

So to Dr. Campbell, my dentist, and happy my molars needed no tinkering for the account of a year or more and took me to lunch at the Voisin and saw among those there Natacha Rambova, Regina Wallace and Dr. George Dorsey.

Walked among the huge mansions on Park avenue and wondered how a man could live content in a fifty-room house, and so home and at my typewriter until Ed Nolan, [illegible] Hoge and Grace Moore came and all of us to Lindy's, a theatrical cafe. Then early to bed.

This chorus girl protection nonsense has gone about far enough. A press agent reports that a certain theater has opened a mothers' room—for mamas of chorines who fear to permit their darlings to go to the theater unattended. The dangers besetting a Broadway chorus girl journeying alone to the theater are equivalent to those facing elderly spinsters attending a Christmas cantata at Three Forks, Nebraska, on a rainy afternoon. Hundreds of chorus girls go to and from the theater nightly, and those not patently flirtatious are no more pestered by stage-door Johns or other pavement sheiks than the average girl repulsing such advances. Cheap sports in search of amorous sidewalk conquests are not looking for ladies of the ensemble. They are entirely too expensive.

Incidentally the curb flirts who roam Fifth avenue in their autos in search of pulchritudinous pickups have been almost quenched. It was an old story of setting a thief to catch a thief. A band of single adroit ladies made the avenue their rendezvous and found the "pickings" literally just perfectly dandy. They accepted advances, so would they object to impromptu snuggling parties in a whirl through the park on the way to their addresses. And a little later the Romeos would discover the loss of their wallets and watches. It was the sort of pilfering they would hesitate to relate to the police. But it cured many of curb conquests.

One of those impudently youthful playwrights with a tidy technique for sarcasm was greeted at tea the other afternoon by a society lady who made a serious excursion into the films. Said she: "I saw your play last night but I didn't laugh once."

"That's strange," he replied. "I saw your film and laughed all the time. Now let's split a beaker of cocaine and be friends."

Those rare moderns who are reputed to breakfast on cocktails at sundown, inhabit the potted woods of night clubs and are everlastingly dancing have found a final stopping place for their nightly pleasures. An idea of the Broadway improvisation of gossip. In a night club recently a lady in a party of which I was a member saw a caricature on the wall she desired. So in a hoydenish manner she swiped it. A dozen times I have heard of an angry wife storming there to tear her husband's caricature from the wall.

Twenty Years Ago.

This day was Thursday.

The Star told of the marriage, the evening before, of Mrs. Ella Whitman and Mr. Theodore J. Knapp, at LaRue, by Rev. J. C. Curry of that place.

Local newspaper offices and the telegraph offices were fairly besieged by people seeking news of the Thaw case.

The Star told how, the day before, T. L. Hambleton, foreman of the quarries at Owens, accidentally hit his right hand with a heavy hammer, breaking the bones of his hand and his forefinger.

Word was received of the birth of a daughter, two days before, to Mr. and Mrs. John Mason, of Kirkpatrick.

It was announced that "The Door of Hope" was to be the name of a non-denominational institution for homeless and fallen women and girls to occupy the George Emerson property of Davids street.

Miss Mayme Noonan, twenty-seven, of Marion, dropped dead while visiting friends in Galion.

The third annual gymnasium banquet was held at the Y. M. C. A. building.

Mrs. Susannah Johnston, seventy-five, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. A. Wolford, of east Center street.

There was talk of the appointment of a receiver for the Erie, but officials of the road scouted the idea.

The state board of health examined the local sewage disposal plant and found it very satisfactory.

Miss Olive A. Counterman and Mr. Henry A. Ebert were married by Rev. Philip Dieckman.

Today's Worst Story.

BY WILL ROGERS

Golf is getting to be a public necessity, just like ice and water and gas and scandal. A town has got to have golf. Maybe it can buy its electric power from some other town. It may be able to get along without a tourist camp. But only an unpatriotic guy would suggest that the home town ought to drag through another season without a public golf links. The golf club links ain't enough. If golf is a public necessity, why of course it's up to the public to provide itself with councilmen that knows their business well enough to set up public links where the charge for playing is not quite enough to pay for the spading costs.

Somebody was telling me about a town in the West where they were starting a public golf course and one of the councilmen or commissioners says:

"Now, we've got to have this here course restricted, so only employes can use it. No proprietors of anything can play golf for nothing."

"But that'd be class legislation," says the town attorney.

"Let it be what you want to call it," says this guy. "We've got to have our golf course divided up, so that the big bugs can play at the Country club and the others at the municipal links. I reckon I ought to know. Why, I'm one of the big bugs. I hire a lot of guys, and every once in a while I tell the office I'm sick and got to go home and then I meet one of my foremen or managers or something out on the links, and it turns out that he's sick too. That don't do, and I hate to keep firing the boys for such little things. Golf courses can be used by two classes of people, I tell you."

BEHIND THE SCREEN

CORRINE GRIFFITH film star, is highly enthusiastic over an offer made her by Archie Selwyn to appear on Broadway in "The Garden of Eden," simultaneously, taking the same part in a screen version of this famous play under her new contract with the United Artists. Miss Griffith says she has never wanted to do anything so much in her life as to appear in a stage play, but is a little scared about the spoken drama, before the footlights. Yet the plan outlined by Archie Selwyn is so enticing that a final decision in favor of her acceptance is anticipated.

The lure of the footlights is also claiming dainty, charming Lois Moran. She may appear in a musical comedy to be produced in Los Angeles. Lois started her career in the ballet of the Paris Opera House and she learned to dance from the Russians. Her stage engagements will in no wise interfere with her picture career since, according to present plans, Lois' footlight stunts are to be staged around Los Angeles between picture engagements.

The other two men, Frank Warnock, 49, of Milwaukee and John Gordon, 39, of Buffalo, faced loitering charges.

FLOOD DAMAGE REPAIR WORK NEAR COMPLETION

Contracts To Be Let for Bridge and Culvert Replacements

With the exception of three jobs, the emergency road work made necessary by the high water in March, has all been completed, County Surveyor Cecil R. Leavens states.

One bridge, one culvert and some work on the dike near the John H. Clark farm remain to be put back in the same condition they were before the heavy rains caused the damage. The bridge and culvert work will be done on contract and this will be let as soon as possible. The jobs are the result of the worst damage done by the flood. All the other bridge and culvert work has been done by the county road force. The dike work will be done by the county also as soon as the arrangements can be made.

The first estimate of the damage to county roads, bridges and culverts, $10,000, made by Leavens, will be very close to the actual cost of putting the roads and bridges back in the same condition they were before the high water.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

Old Folks Need a Mild Laxative —Not a "Physic"

Most well and women past fifty need give to the bowels some occasional help else they suffer from constipation. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect a gentle aid to weak bowels.

Is your present laxative in whatever form, promoting natural bowel "regularity"—or must you purge and "physic" every day or two to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, colds, or sour, gassy stomach?

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural, regular bowel movement even for those chronically constipated. It never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin", Monticello, Illinois, for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself.

New Woman Still Clings to Rich Stuffs

The "new" woman has surely emancipated herself from a lot of traditions and customs. But the lure of soft, rich fabrics and lovely colors persists. She may be man's equal in politics and business, but she is certainly his superior in the attractiveness of her clothing.

In her leisure moments—if any—she delights in the pajama ensemble as pictured. This is an American design comprising blouse and shawl scarf of beige crepe, the printed sleeves being a feature of the shawl.

The trousers are black satin.

Parent-Teacher Council Plans Pre-School Clinic

Every child of pre-school age in the city enrolled in the clinic for children of pre-school age to be held here May 10, 11 and 12, is the aim of members of the Parent-Teacher Council, under whose auspices the second annual clinic will be held, it was announced today by Mrs. E. H. Morgan, president of the organization.

Members of the Marion County Medical Association, Red Cross and City Health Nurses, will cooperate with Dr. W. J. Weiser, city health commissioner, and members of the council in conducting the clinic which will be in the hands of doctors from the state health department. Mothers with children to enter school next September are urged to get in touch with their community clubs and arrange for the enrollment of the youngsters for the clinic.

While it is planned to have clinics in every school in the city some time during the three days not all schools have completed their enrollment, it was announced. Sixty children have been enrolled at the Lincoln Building and a large number have been listed at Harding Heights, Pearl Street and Oak Avenue Building.

Arrangements are being completed for the clinic for children of pre-school age to be held in the county under the direction of Dr. Sifritt, county health commissioner, and it is expected that they will be held in practically every school.

Approximately 25,000 children will be examined in clinics throughout the state and in a number of cities, including Marietta, Elyria and Lakewood, the enrollment will be less than 1 per cent, according to reports from state headquarters.

Sturdy Lines of Tennyson Guide for This Generation

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"SELF wisdom, self knowledge self control.
These three alone lead life to sovereign power.
Yet not for power—power of herself would come uncalled for,
But to live by law,
Acting the law we live by without fear,
And because right is right to follow right,
Were wisdom in the scorn of consequence."

So wrote that sturdy Victorian poet, Alfred Tennyson, and his words would surely be a good motto for us of this generation.

* * *

"DEAR Mrs. Lee: I am in a most unhappy situation and don't know what to do. My husband and I have always been happy together until lately. In the last year a family has moved near us and the neighbor's husband and I have grown fond of one another. We have two children and they have three of high school and college age. This other couple does not seem very congenial and when the four of us are together we naturally separate into couples—my husband and the neighbor woman and the man and I, although my husband and the other man's wife do not seem to care much for one another. It is an almost impossible situation as I cannot bear the idea of breaking up both our homes and yet I feel that we are growing fonder and fonder of one another. It cannot go on much longer without people finding out. What shall I do?

I MIGHT advise you to go away from home for a time, if possible, and get a better prospective on your problem. But whether you do or not you have simply got to look the problem straight in the face and make up your mind to "play fair." You promised to love and honor one man—your husband. He has kept his part of the bargain, I judge from your letter. So has the neighbor's wife. And in each family there are young people who look up to father and mother as upright people with high ideals. You can have absolutely no happiness in letting your love—or infatuation for this man and his for you—grow. As an honorable woman it is therefore necessary for you to stifle this unlawful love.

YOU need not send a note to a person who has sent you flowers if you will see him shortly, Margaret, but they should be acknowledged as soon as possible.

One day an attorney calls at the house, with proof that the father of the twins is dead and they are the nieces of a wealthy resident of Indianapolis. Mollie and Prof accompany the girls to their uncle's.

Now Begin the Story

CHAPTER XXI

JOHN CLAYTON, the new-found uncle of the twins, found a never-ending source of enjoyment in Mollie Elwell. Her wholesome unaffectedness, her natural ways and freedom from all the mannerisms and posings of some of the social set to which he belonged made a strong appeal to his finely developed mentality.

Not only was John Clayton a student of his kind but he was a master student. To find a new and pleasing personality was to him a treat as rich in value as the finding of a new species of moth is to the naturalist. In Mollie Elwell, he kept telling himself, he had discovered something he had seldom encountered in the ranks of the thing that is called Society—a woman with a brain that functioned along the lines of common sense and with a nature that radiated unselfishness and sweetness. A rare "female of the species" to John Clayton.

The girls and Prof also proved objects of interest and pleasure to him. And so at the end of their first week's visit, when Mollie began to talk about returning to Camdenville, he simply wouldn't hear of it.

Not for another week at the very earliest, he told them with much emphasis one morning at the breakfast table when she had again introduced the subject. "In the meantime I want you to meet a few of our society buds and blossoms, as well as a sprout or two and a couple of withering twigs."

It would be worth their while, he could assure them, if they were interested in observing a new phenomenon.

"I'm arranging a little party in honor of the girls, and we'll have in quite a lot of young people to meet them. You wouldn't want to be absent from your adopted daughters' coming out party, you know."

And so Mollie and Prof Elwell, thus urged and, in addition, virtually smothered by the protestations of the twins, assented.

Alone one day with Mollie — they were in the library looking over some books which he had urged her to read —he asked, quite suddenly: "Your boy Jim. Did I understand that he was in love with one of the girls?"

Mollie's hand flew to her throat. "I don't understand how you came to—" she began but he cut her off.

"You may say I just guessed," he said. "Tell me about it, please. It will go no farther."

Jim, Mollie told him, had admitted his love for one of the girls but had exacted a promise of her not to try to find out which one it was because —"well, because he thought he might not come back, and in that event he wanted to be sure that both girls would be just the same to me as before."

John Clayton noticed that her lips were trembling, and was quick to say that "such thoughtfulness on the part of a young man was something rare in this day and age."

And Jim, he continued, had been reported killed at Sedan? "Forgive me for making you talk about it, Mrs. Elwell, but it is something more than mere curiosity on my part."

Mollie smiled. It was a feeble little smile and John Clayton's heart went out to her. "It was not until several months after the armistice that we got word from the War Deparment that Jim had been killed. We had bought him still in a hospital recovering from the flu."

"What a shame!" he breathed in quick sympathy. "What a shame!"

He would try, he said, to locate Jim's grave over in France, and some day they all would go over to visit it. "If you'd like to," he added.

Mollie wasn't certain about this. "If it wouldn't be too hard to bear," she said, finally.

The "buds" and "sprouts" described by John Clayton eventually made their appearance. The "buds," he had explained, were the young ladies, and "sprouts" was his designation for the wealthy and shiftless youths, for whom he entertained a hearty contempt.

One of the sprouts present at the twins' party answered to the name of Freddie Lawrence, and Freddie's bent was amateur theatricals. Nor was he long in informing Betty that he had written and directed the production of a thrilling movie portraying the weird and vivid story of an obscure telephone girl's leap from her night trick right into the spotlight in one grand jump. The name of the masterpiece, Freddie told her, was "The Psychic Kiss."

"Just amateur stuff, you know," he assured her.

"Oh, yes," said Betty, "I understand."

"Just for the fun of the thing, you know. Couldn't think of doing it for money, although I daresay the thing would sell."

This classic, the twins were informed by John Clayton, had been screened exclusively for the "smart set."

"Since then Freddie has been known as 'the talented young writer and director of amateur picture plays.' And as if that were not enough to wither his chances in life, some artless debutante has taken it upon herself to switch the handicap of 'talented' to 'handsome.'

Do You Remember?

When the village globe trotter used to return from his yearly visit to the big city

"And right away Freddie went out and bought himself a new vanity set and started in to teach the prettiest ones how to register 'the Divine Thrill.' Really, irls, you must become better acquainted with Freddie Lawrence."

"I don't think," Rusty whispered—for they were standing not far away from the one under discussion—"I don't think I'm going to like him."

Clayton laughed, "Oh, you mustn't say that, my dear. Nature doesn't very often turn out a Freddie Lawrence. He is rare." And he moved away.

Following the dinner the guests and their host gathered in the drawing room, and Betty, through some whim of perversity, mentioned to her uncle, in the hearing of Freddie Lawrence, that it had been her ambition at one time to become a movie star.

Freddie yipped delightedly. "Oh, you, don't mean it, Miss Marvin! I should love to give you a few pointers and then see how you register for the camera!"

John Clayton grinned and bestowed on Betty an indulgent look. "Why," he suggested, "don't you take him up?"

"Freddie," piped up a sweet young thing in red, "is the one grand little instructor in registration, if that's the word! You can take it from one as knows!" This last with a significant emphasis and a slow wink at the twins.

Freddie withered her with a chilling look, and then turned to Betty.

"What do you say, Miss Marvin?" he asked eagerly, with a languishing look into her eyes. "Wouldn't you like to find out if you have moving picture possibilities?"

The sweet young thing in red shouted "Come here, everybody. Freddie's got a new pupil!" and clapped her hands.

Betty looked again at her uncle and, reading encouragement in his quick look and nod, assented. "I suppose," she said to Freddie, "I might take one lesson to see if I could qualify."

"Fine," the young genius exclaimed with large enthusiasim. "I can already visualize you as a coming star of the silver screen."

A languid looking youth named Phillips volunteered his help. He began to push back the chairs. "And what," he asked, "are you going to name the picture, Freddie? From Switchboard to Fame?"

Freddie ignored him. "Now," he said to Betty when he had his stage all set to suit himself, "just imagine that the audience here represents the camera's eye. But you must forget, you know, that the camera has an eye, although you've got to remember that every little movement you make has a meaning of its own when projected on the screen."

"Why, Freddie, you don't say!" exclaimed Phillips. "'Every Little Movement Has a Meaning All Its Own,'" he hummed.

Very carefully Freddie Lawrence adjusted the slant of Betty's chin, with the most painstaking attention to elevation and position.

"There," he announced finally when he had everything just right and himself properly focused in the "camera's eye." "Now we get ready for action. And don't forget to register. We will suppose, for instance, that you have just got word that someone who is dear to you has died. Remember, now, to portray deep feeling. You've got to act, you know; make it realistic. All set? All right, ready for action now!"

Betty's eyes suddenly clouded with pain, and Mollie and Rusty, who were looking on, both winced.

"Marvelous!" exclaimed Freddie Lawrence.

Mollie, who was standing close to Prof and John Clayton, watched the ridiculous performance with fast-growing nervousness.

"For goodness sake," Mollie exclaimed as Freddie, with his left arm laid across Betty's shoulder and his right hand tilting her chin, bent his face closer to his pupil's. "I hope Betty isn't going to let that man kiss her!"

"I don't think you need worry," advised John Clayton, although his own eyes were now narrowed with displeasure at the scene before them. "The young whippersnapper!" he growled. "It's my conviction," he whispered to Prof, "that Freddie is going to get something administered to him pretty quick that will jar him."

"Ready for action now," repeated Freddy, beginning to bend his head. "This is the big scene." Across his face had spread a simpering grin. "Camera!" he shouted.

Rusty, looking on with eyes that were now frankly disapproving, clenched her fists and started forward.

And then, just at the psychological moment for the amateur director, something slipped.

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

BLOWS FAINTLY AT EMBERS

WITH a hasty word of direction to Katie about luncheon, I hurried to the front hall from which Junior was still vociferously demanding my presence. I found my mother-in-law standing by the hall stairs, and frowning, Dicky doing his best to look smilingly courteous and not succeeding very well, Junior astride his father's shoulders and calling for me, while Jim stood respectfully and uncomfortably in the rear, bearing the suitcase and golf-bag which comprised Dicky's luggage.

"We are waiting, Margaret," my mother-in-law said, with heavy disapproval, "to see which room you have planned for Richard."

I shot a quick glance at my husband. What was he trying to do, stretch our agreement to the last tension of ridiculous observance? Never, except in an emergency during his absence has his room, ever been given to anyone else, and I found when I returned to the farmhouse that my father had scrupulously preserved our sleeping rooms so that we could enter them at any moment as if we just had left them. Yet, Dicky was behaving as if he were registered at a summer hotel, an attitude which his mother was bolstering to the best of her ability.

It was not to him I spoke however, and on my mother-in-law I turned my sunniest smile.

"Why, what possible room could I have planned except his own?" I said. "Surely, Mother, you remember gathering flowers with Junior this morning to put into the vase on his table. Mr. Graham's old room, Jim," I continued nonchalantly, and stepped back to permit of the man's passing me.

But not so easily was I to get off. From his perch on his father's shoulder Junior held out his hand to me. "Hurry up, Mother," he urged imperatively. "Let's go upstairs the way we always do when Daddy comes."

There was nothing for me to do but to acquiesce. Junior's round questioning eyes, and his grandmother's equally interrogative but more disapproving orbs were fixed upon me. So, though I had much the feeling that I would have experienced at the funeral of someone dear to me, I went to my accustomed place at my husband's side, felt his arm go round my waist in the old way, put my hand up and caught Junior's, and thus ascended the staircase in what was to me, and I knew to Dicky as well, a pitiful travesty of our old loving rollicking journey up the stairway upon his homecomings.

If I had not been so heartsick at the remembrance of the old days—although I could find in my soul no desire for a rekindling of the embers of our love—I could have smiled at the gingerly way in which my husband's arm encircled my waist, and at the stiff aloofness with which I held my body as we made our way up the stairs.

"Just so that Junior will not suspect!" This was the slogan sounding in my heart and I knew that it was echoing in Dicky's ears also. But I knew that my mother-in-law's keen old eyes were watching both of us, and that we could not hope to deceive her.

A sudden clutching little fear struck me. I must warn Dicky that under no circumstances must he tell his mother the reason for our estrangement. Acrid, crabbed, often unreasonable as she often is, she is fundamentally sweet as a russet apple, and her pride and love for her son are no stronger than her sense of justice. Often she has helped me through a difficult place in my life with Dicky, when I knew that a lesser woman would have ranged herself upon her son's side and blamed me. I must spare her a revelation which would so pain her.

I frantically clutched at my whirling thoughts, trying to capture an excuse which I could present to Dicky's mother when she should call me to account, a proceeding which I judged by the look on her face, was very near. And, indeed, Dicky had barely shut the door of his room behind himself and his small son who was already clamoring to help him unpack before my mother-in-law's voice said firmly:

"Margaret, come in here a minute, I want you."

Nature Doesn't Punish Her Any Longer

Menstruation is Nature — but menstrual pain is NOT natural, and not necessary. Science has conquered the painful part. In a harmless — yes, healthful — little tablet called midol.

Midol is a more remarkable means of relieving such pain than even a habit-forming drug. It acts directly on the organs affected by menstruation, and relief comes in five to seven minutes.

Don't have another day of forced quiet, of pain, low spirits or even discomfort! Midol is effective twelve hours or more. Yet it does not depress the heart, is not narcotic, and is utterly harmless. All druggists, 50 cents, in thin aluminum box that fits the smallest purse.

Jealousy Advanced as Possible Motive for Murder of Farmer

Famous Magicians to Attend Kenton Convention June 8, 9, 10

GOV. DONAHEY AND SEN. WILLIS TO BE GUESTS

Thurston and Blackstone To Head Gathering of 800 Artists

Kenton, April 11—For the second time in as many years, this city will enjoy the rare sensation of being turned upside down and wrong side out for a period of three days, namely June 8, 9 and 10.

The occasion of the upside down inside out situation will be the Second Annual Convention of the International Brotherhood of Magicians, when conjurors, fine and superfine, hypnotists, ventriloquists and representatives of a various other lines of endeavor in private and public entertainment gather in executive session in the home city of the organization's president, W. W. Durbin.

1,500 Members

As leader of his group, Mr. Durbin, himself a magician of no mean ability, has put into practice the old trick of putting one duck in a box and bringing out six others. In 1926, 200 members of the I. B. M. attended the convention. Advance reservations for 1927 indicate that at least 800 of the 1,500 members will be present this year. Outstanding in the long list promising to be on hand are Thurston, Blackstone, Mysterious Smith, Dante, Servais LeRoy, Brush Davis, T. Nelson Downs, Doc Nixon, McDonald Birch, all outstanding figures in the world of magic. Within the past week, Mr. Durbin has received word from Harry Llewellyn, owner of one of Australia's largest shoe manufacturing concerns and head of the I. B. M. in that remote corner of the globe, that he will arrive in Vancouver, B. C., on May 27 and will attend the convention here.

Governor Vic Donahey and Senator Frank B. Willis will head a delegation of distinguished visitors at the convention banquet on the night of the opening day.

First activities on the convention program include the staging of a parade by the I. B. M. members shortly after noon on June 8. First business sessions will be held immediately following with memorial services for six members deceased this past year closing the day's work.

Public Show

Magicians of international renown are on the program which will follow the banquet and will be given for the delegates and the public at the Grand Opera House. Other public demonstrations of showmanship and wizardry are scheduled to take place on the streets and in many local manufacturing establishments.

Starting his career in the magic art as a youth, Mr. Durbin has become probably the best known of his colleagues in this state. He forsook showmanship as a profession early in life and is head of the Scioto Sign Co., a local institution, and has magic as his hobby. Through a long and colorful career in the nation's business and political field, he is among the best known citizens of Ohio. He served the Democratic party for several years as state chairman and has held many prominent public offices. He is credited by I. B. M. members as knowing more professional and amateur magicians than any other individual on the face of the globe.

ATTACK WARDEN THOMAS' ATTITUDE IN BRIEF

Claim Conduct Clear Invasion of Constitutional and Civil Rights

Columbus, April 11 Claiming that the conduct of the warden in this case is not only a clear invasion of the constitutional and civil rights of both Mills and McDermott, but, also, constitutes a gross and flagrant abuse of his official discretion, the remedy for which may be invoked by either of the parties," Attorneys Knepper and Wilcox, a Columbus law firm, filed a reply brief today in the state supreme appellate court ordering P. E. Thomas, warden of Ohio Penitentiary, to permit Attorney Everett L. Mills, Canton, to interview privately his client, Patrick McDermott.

McDermott is serving a life sentence in the penitentiary, following conviction of murdering Don R. Mellett, Canton, News publisher. Following the warden's refusal to permit Mills to talk to McDermott privately, Knepper & Wilcox, representing Mills joined Attorney General E. C. Turner, and J. A. Godown, an assistant attorney general, representing Warden Thomas, in appealing to the supreme court for a determination of the issues involved.

Turner and Godown filed a brief Saturday, contending that no constitutional question is involved in this case, and alleging that McDermott, by reason of his imprisonment, "has forfeited constitutional rights, including the right to privately consult with his counsel," and that "no specific statutory provision is made for an attorney to visit a convict and interview him."

DONAHEY APPEALS FOR SLOT MACHINE MEASURE

Governor Urges State Legislature To "Legislate for Protection of Children"

Columbus, April 11—Gov. Vic Donahey this afternoon appealed to the Ohio Legislature to "legislate for the protection of the children of the state, instead of acting for the protection of the slot machine gamblers that are saving fat on the nickels and dimes of our children."

Denying the charge that the DeArmond anti-slot machine bill, defeated in the senate here last week, was "written by the attorney for a slot machine manufacturer and distributor and introduced in the interests of the manufacturer and distributor," the governor, in a message to the Ohio Senate, this afternoon said.

"I again appeal to you to enact a really effective law against slot machines of a gambling nature. If the DeArmond bill requires an amendment in order to prohibit the one type of machine Sen. J. Eugene Roberts, of Mahoning County, and Correspondent Forster (R. A. Forster, a member of the Ohio Legislative Correspondents' Association) say it would legalize, I hope you will so amend it."

BRITAIN IS UNABLE TO ACCEPT FRENCH PLAN

Viscount Cecil Sends Letter to M. Boncour at League Conference

Geneva, April 11— Viscount Cecil, British delegate to the League of Nations preparatory arms limitation conference, today sent a letter to M. Boncour, the French representative, stating that Great Britain is unable to accept the French compromise proposals for naval limitation.

The British delegate explained to the conference that Great Britain believes the French naval proposition does not afford sufficient security.

Signor De Marinis, the Italian delegate, announced Italy's unwillingness to accept the French compromise for reasons just opposite to those of the British. The Italians think that the French proposition "goes too far."

M. Boncour's compromise proposition, made public Saturday, provided that any national unwilling to accept naval limitation by categories should advance its naval construction programs during the life of any limitation covenant that might be drawn and accepted. Under the French plan the nations rejecting the plan of limitation by categories would be compelled to make known in advance the total tonnage planned.

E. C. TURNER INTERPRETS PRISON FOOD MEASURE

Opinion Given to Prosecuting Attorney J. W. Dugan, New Lexington

Columbus, April 11- Legal interpretation of the Bender Bill, relating to the feeding of prisoners in county jails, is contained in an opinion given today by Attorney General E. C. Turner to Prosecuting Attorney John D. Dugan, New Lexington.

The Bender Bill, enacted during the present session of the Ohio Legislature, becomes effective as law June 16, next.

The attorney general held that, under the provisions of the Bender act, "sheriffs in all counties shall be allowed by the county commissioners to actual cost of keeping and feeding prisoners, or other persons, confined in the county jail at a rate not to exceed 75 cents per day of three meals each."

"Sheriffs in all counties are required," Turner continued, "to render on the fifth day of each calendar month to the county commissioners an itemized and accurate account, with all bills attached, showing the actual cost of keeping and feeding prisoners and other persons placed in his charge and the number of meals served to each such prisoner or other person during the preceding month.

"Sheriffs in counties where the daily average number of prisoners, or other persons, confined in the county jail during the year next preceding did not exceed 20 in number are directed to spend not less than an average of 15 cents per meal for the prisoners and other persons confined in the county jail," declared Turner.

POTENTIAL CANDIDATES INVITED TO DRY DEBATE

Wayne B. Wheeler and Clarence Darrow Will Argue Prohibition Question April 23

New York April 11—Public interest in the prohibition debate between Wayne B. Wheeler counsel for the Anti-Saloon League at Washington and Clarence Darrow, noted Chicago attorney, which will be held at Carnegie Hall on April 23, promised today to transcend the interest in the Borah-Butler debate in Boston last Friday night.

Ernest J. Howe, president of the American Forum, under whose auspices the debate will be held, said that invitations were being sent to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, and Sen. William E. Borah of Idaho.

Others to whom invitations will be sent are Governor Smith, William G. McAdoo, Former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, Sen. James A. Reed of Missouri, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, and Sen. Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas.

"Our idea in extending invitations to these potential candidates results from a belief that the debate between Mr. Wheeler and Mr. Darrow will throw considerable light on various phases of the prohibition question as affecting 1928 nominations and elections" Howe said.

SEEK RELEASE OF GIRL FROM REFORMATORY

Xenia Attorney Challenges Constitutionality of Ohio Law on Terms

Columbus, April 11—Challenging the constitutionality of the Ohio law which decrees that women shall be sentenced to the Ohio Reformatories for Women, at Marysville for an indefinite term of imprisonment, Attorney Frank L. Johnson, Xenia, applied to the state supreme court Saturday for a writ of habeas corpus releasing Virginia Brad, Alice County, from the Marysville institution.

Virginia Brady, according to the record, was arrested in the Allen County seat's court of contributing to the delinquency of a minor and was bond $25 and sentenced to 30 days in the Marysville reformatory. To this a was stated was paid.

Johnson informed the supreme court that the superintendent of the reformatory is seeking to hold Virginia Brady longer than 30 days under the Ohio law which decrees that courts imposing sentences to Ohio Reformatories for women shall make them general and not fixed or limited in their duration' and that in case of commitments of male prisoners for misdemeanor or delinquency the term of imprisonment 'shall not be more than three years, but such person shall be eligible for parole' after from two to six months' imprisonment.

Declaring that the law 'provides a different penalty for a woman, convicting a misdemeanor, than it does for a man, committing the same misdemeanor, and is, therefore, unconstitutional, Johnson cited the provision of the federal constitution that "no state shall make, or enforce, any law which shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

"Under the section of the general code of Ohio, under which Virginia Brady was convicted, the court could have given a definite sentence had she been a man," said Johnson. "We claim, therefore, and he (the trial judge) would have to give a definite sentence likewise to a woman and that the superintendent of Marysville Reformatory) is without authority to hold her longer than the time imposed by the court—which was 30 days," declared Johnson.

MONEY FOUND IN CLOTHES ROUTS THEFT THEORY

Crawford County Official States New Belief May Prove Reliable

Bucyrus, April 11—Jealousy is being advanced as the motive for the murder of Clarence Lowe, Leesville, farmer, on the Lovejoy Highway, Friday night, it was learned here.

Lowe was reliably reported to have been calling on a woman in the community and he had been followed before. It is further declared that both Lowe and the woman have received letters threatening their lives if they continued their friendship. Lowe was a widower and supported a family of two children, his mother, a blind uncle and two sisters, one an invalid. He was a well-reported farmer operating a 100 acre farm northeast of Leesville and operating a threshing machine in the summer.

Deputy Sheriff Fred Judd stated this morning that the jealousy motive might prove reliable.

Found Near Bridge

The body was found about 11:50 Friday night by Richard and William Fetzer, who were returning home from their work at the Pennsylvania round house at Crestline. His body was lying face downward near the guard rail along the approach to the stone quarry bridge. His auto was nearby with the motor running and dim lights on. Powder burns on his clothing and chest indicated that he had been shot from close range.

The bullet which caused Lowe's death was found in his body at the autopsy held yesterday. No other important discoveries were reported. The bullet had gone through the heart.

Officials at first believed that the murder was committed for robbery as Lowes pocketbook was found about 20 feet from the dead body. The robbery theory was complicated, however, by the finding of $13 in Lowe's pocket. The body was taken to Lowes home Sunday after the autopsy.

Notified Officials

The Fetzer brothers upon finding the dead body of Lowe returned to Crestline and notified officials. Crestline police and the Foster ambulance rushed to the scene of the murder. The body was taken to Emergency Hospital and later to the Foster undertaking parlors.

This is the fourth violent death to take place in the Crestline-Leesville vicinity in recent months. Lowe had been a lifelong resident of Leesville community. He was the son of John and Eva Lowe. He was married to Eva Frick, eight years ago. Mrs. Lowe died three years ago. The murdered man is survived by his mother, two sons, John aged 4 and Charles, aged 6, three sisters, Marie and Lucy at home and Mrs. Theodore Frick of Leesville, and one brother, Harry Lowe of Crestline, an employe of the Nellis and Myers garage.

CONTROVERSIES AIRED IN SAPIRO-FORD SUIT

Story of Colorado Potato Organization Parallels "Co-op" King's Career

Federal Building Detroit, April 11—A series of controversies which marked the activities of Aaron Sapiro in organizing Colorado Potato Growers were revealed to the jury today in the million dollar Ford-Sapiro libel suit.

The Colorado story closely paralleled Sapiro's career among Idaho growers, when he finally sued for fees through a clerk. The so-called cooperative king also sued the Colorado growers for fees in the same manner after having told them he would accept whatever compensation they offered for his services. Senator Reed, Ford's counsel, brought out.

General Strike Memories Refreshed with Report of Britain's Finances

London April 11—Winston Churchill chancellor of the exchequer arose before a packed house of commons this afternoon and delivered what was perhaps the most discouraging budget message Great Britain had had since the days of the World War.

Stressing the statement that great injury was done to trade and the exchequer by the general strike of last summer, Churchill declared that though "we meet under the shadow of last year, it is not the time to bewail the past but it is time to pay the bill."

Churchill reported that revenue for 1926 decreased more than £17,500,000 (approximately $87,000,000) while expenditures increased more than £14,500,000 (approximately $72,000,000).

Expenditures for the year 1927-28 were estimated by Churchill to be £18,590,000 (approximately $91,950,000).

They'll Steer Major League Teams Through 1927 Season

Quarter Million Baseball Fans to Rush Turnstiles As Season Opens Tuesday

Major League Ball, After Winter of Discontent, Will Hold Its Usual Grand and Glorious Opening in Eight Cities Tuesday; Many Changes Wrought During Last Few Months

New York, April 11—Professional baseball, which like to think that Ban Johnson of Troy was a "cutey" in order to make the thing look good, will suspend under foot in the rush of the turnstiles tomorrow by a million souls, faithful always to their annual tryst with the game that is as much a part of America as Fourth of July liberty and the corner saloon. Major League baseball, reviled and abused through a winter of discontent, is to have its official rebirth within 24 hours and, regardless of whether its feet be clay or lead, America is willing to line the pockets with gold in order to cement its friendship that will endure through the ages.

Back in New York, Ty Cobb, a central figure in a mid-winter scandal that came to nothing, will be shown the uniform of the Philadelphia Athletics for the first time since he entered the major league 22 years ago. With him will be Eddie Collins, returning to the scene of his early fame; Zack Wheat, almost a hallowed figure now; Joe Bedey and Dudley Branom. A part of $50,000 minor leaguers and probably the most interesting ball club since the days of the old Orioles.

Babe Ruth Attracts

The real attraction will be Babe Ruth, most famous of all players, and the New York Yankees, the playing-est champions, and the thing is a natural from the box office standpoint. Even the world series itself has witnessed a bigger advance sale than the local opening.

The first reservation for the Washington premiere arrived the day after Tris Speaker was purchased by the Senators and today you couldn't keep the boys away with a shot gun. So much for one of the 1926-27 scandals that had Speaker on the pelard with Cobb.

The other scandal named a score or more of players but is hackneyed so much that the identity of many of the accused has been forgotten, even in the few short months intervening.

Enjoys Advertising

Baseball, always a favorite of the fates, also enjoyed a million dollars worth of advertising that was far less adverse and far more wholesome. Babe Ruth, for instance, was signed with a flare and a flourish to a $70,000-a-year contract. Rogers Hornsby, manager of a world's champion, was traded to New York and only two years ago did he condescend to accept $116,700 for his stock in the Cardinals, with resultant publicity.

Eight new managers took charge of teams in both leagues. Bill Carrigan, famous as Fenway park itself, coming back to Boston and the town where he won world's championships. Other new ones are Bob O'Farrell with the Cardinals; Dan Howley with the Browns; Donie Bush with Pittsburgh Pirates, who like to think that Bill Sciush with the White Sox; George Moriarty with the Tigers; Stuffy McInnies with the Phillies and Jack McCallister with the Indians. It is a matter of record that a new manager never kept an addict from an opening game.

Expect Capacity Crowds

In fact, granted favorable weather, it would surprise no one if the teams played to capacity, or thereabout, in each of the eight favored cities. The Phillies generally are picked to go nowhere very rapidly; yet with Hornsby and Eddie Roush, new Giants, and John McGraw, celebrating his silver jubilee as manager, as the headliners and Philadelphia's established loyalty to the National League club, no customer will suffer from loneliness at the Baker Stadium.

The New York and Washington openings cannot miss; neither can Cleveland's inaugural with the White Sox nor the Champion Cardinals invasion of Chicago against a rising young ball club that may live to knock them all off. Boston, of course, will support its Braves against the Dodgers as only Boston can and St. Louis, convinced by the Cards that there is a Santa Claus, will be out there to tell the Browns and Tigers that anything is possible now.

Pirates vs. Reds

The Pirates and Reds, pre-season favorites, will be another "natural" for the Cincinnati opening; in fact, Redland field probably would have to have rubber walls to accomodate every baseball who has the price and the inclination to part with it.

It is customary to exude optimism at the stage of the proceedings and the writer has duly done so. However, the effort involved was negligible. There isn't a doubt at the moment that more interest is being manifested in baseball than at any time within memory.

MANAGERS TO MEET

Steam Shovel Recreational Ball Activities To Start in Earnest Tonight

A meeting of recreational ball managers of the Marion Steam Shovel teams will be held tonight at the Shovel in preparation for the coming season, it was announced today.

Not only will plans for the opening of the regular Shovel recreational ball season be discussed. It is expected that managers tonight will decide how many teams will enter the regular city leagues. The teams have been playing inside ball for several weeks and will be in good trim for the outdoor siege after the first of the month.

It requires miraculous tact to keep a suggestion from sounding like witticism.

MERRY WIDOW TOURNEY OPENS AT "Y" TODAY

Handicaps in Industrial League Are Announced by Manager Meredith

The "Merry Widow," Marion Y. M. C. A.'s annual bowling tournament opens tonight on the alleys at the "Y". It will continue for three weeks, closing April 30, with prizes being awarded the winners in the singles, doubles, and mixed doubles. All entrants must be members of the National, Industrial or Business Women's Bowling leagues of this city.

No games will be rolled except in the presence of the alley manager, Ed Meredith, who must be notified before any series starts. Bowlers may roll as many games as they wish and may participate in all of the events.

In the National League, Steinmetz's average of 181 has been taken as the score from which the handicap will be measured. The same average, rolled by Norris and Snyder of the Marion Steam Shovel team, will be used as the scratch score in the Industrial League.

Using 181 as the high average, the lowest handicap among Industrial bowlers is five pins. Two Steam Shovel men, Boyd and Babcock, and Wheeler of the Pennsy & Hocking Valley Teams get the low handicap. The highest number of pins going as a handicap in the "Merry Widow" is 39.

Here are the Industrial League standings and handicaps as compiled by Manager E. Meredith of the Y. M. C. A. alleys:

WELDERS, RECORDS AND ORDERS ARE WINNERS

Victors in Steam Shovel Indoor Baseball Games on Gym Floor

Welders, Records and Orders were winners Saturday afternoon in indoor baseball games played on the Marion Steam Shovel gym floor. Apprenticies were the victims of the Welders, taking the tail end of a 34 to 31 score. The Records defeated General Office 22 to 13 and Orders won from Machinists 15 to 10.

Schott and Allen were batteries for the Apprentices while DeArmitt and Clapsaddle held those positions for the winning Welders. Taylor and Ginder were the General Office batteries and White and Conklin held those posts for the Records. Clark and Ginder pitched and caught respectively for the Order department while D. Creasap and Wilson acted as batteries for the Machinists.

The University of Richmond will be host to the fourth annual track and field meet of South Atlantic colleges on May 13-14.

NEW GOLF PRO PREPARING FOR COMING SEASON

George Wilson Arrives in Marion To Take Up Duties at Country Club

George Wilson, the new pro for the coming season at the Marion Country Club, arrived in the city today and will probably be ready to give instructions within the next few days. Mr. Wilson announced today that he expected to have things in readiness at the club by Wednesday, if favored with pleasant weather.

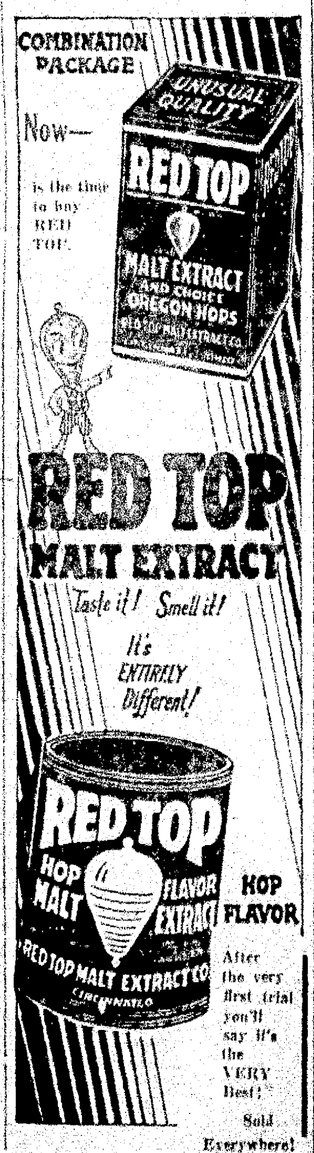

The exact date for the opening of the Marion Country Club has not yet been announced and depends greatly on the weather conditions during the next week or two.

Mr. Wilson, the new pro, comes here from Calusett Golf and Country Club of Cocoa-Rockledge, Fla., where he has been engaged in that profession for the last five years. Mr. Wilson has been in the golf game for 25 years.

He came to this country from North Berwick, Scotland, the second oldest golf course in the world. He was engaged on the course of Lord Northcliffe for three years and served on other links in England and Scotland before coming to this country. Mr. Wilson was engaged at the Ottumwa Country Club Ottumwa, Ia., eight years before going to Florida.

REDS WIN AGAIN

Cincinnati, April 11—The Reds today were in undisputed possession of the spring championship of Ohio, having trounced the Indians in the last pre-season exhibition, 5 to 3. The Reds rest today, and pry top lid off on their home grounds Tuesday with the Pirates as guests.

Marion Athletics Hold First Workout at Lincoln Park; Batteries Not Present

FAVORED with splendid weather, the Marion Athletics yesterday afternoon held the first practice session of the season at Lincoln Park.

The regular "gang" with a few additions, was on hand for the batting and fielding practice. The only missing attractions were the Main brothers of Ada and a few men who were scheduled to take care of receiving the ball behind the bat. The boys didn't show up after Manager Bacon watched them Saturday night that rain would probably visit the city and the practice session would possibly not be held Sunday.

But they'll all be here next Sunday and with two weeks in which to "limber" up, should be in top-notch shape for the opener on May 1.

Hit Hard

The boys seemed to have their old batting eye yesterday and knocked the ball all over the lot. A snappy fielding practice was held with favorable results.

Among those present at the first practice were Coates, Price, Bacon, Bowan, Stoner and others from Bucyrus, Galion, Kenton and this city.

The Athletics will meet Springfield here May 1 for the season opener. Springfield will be plenty tough and probably have been practicing for several weeks. Manager Bacon, however, hopes to have his men in condition for the first battle and we predict that the local baseball crew starts the year off in victory.

The boys are planning to take on bigger teams than ever this season. Not satisfied with taking the semi-pro leagues than ever this season. Not satisfied with taking the semi-pro championship of the state last year by winning over the leading semi-professional clubs of Ohio, the locals are thinking about bringing in some big league stuff for Marion fans. Complete plans for the season's campaign have not yet been made, but it is known that one of the teams to appear here during the summer will be the famous Homestead Grays from the neighboring state of Pennsylvania.

Boys' Activities Being Stressed By Marion Y. M. C. A. Officials

Three groups of boys affiliated with the Marion Y. M. C. A. are shown above. They are the Presbyterian Pioneer Club, the Wide Awake Club of the African M. E. Church and the Friendly Indian Club.

Lower center—Friendly Indian Club, reading from front to back of line, Claude Perry, William Barnd, George Houser, William Isaly, Walter Haberman, Robert Meister, Richard Meister, Harry Chase, William Pohler, Robert Shackelford, John Dodd, William Foster, Frederick Meyers, Robert Walsh, Joe Castner, Wilbur Shannon, Claire Jacoby, Thomas Poote, Howard Edsel, Louis Mahla and Eugene Agnew.

Although the Y. M. C. A. was first organized by and for young men over 18 years of age and its program was very largely one of a religious nature with its rapid growth and its development into a large number of departments it has never lost sight of its religious obligation to the church. This is beautifully worked out in connection with the program of church co-operation in the boys work department.

Years ago the question was frequently asked by secretary and layman alike "how does the church co-operate with the 'Y' in your town?" That question is very seldom heard any more for the entire program of the association is built with a view of strengthening the program of the various church bodies in the community. Instead of waiting for the churches to co-operate the "Y" offers its services to the officials of the churches in such ways as the "Y" can best be of service to the church. Sometimes this takes the form of assisting in the organization of church clubs, helping in the execution of its physical program and in various other ways. We are not planning to make this a discussion on what the "Y" can do but rather what the Y is doing along the line of church co-operation.

Service Popular

This extension service is popular and effective. Many churches do not have men who are trained to do this special organization work which is necessary to get boys together and effect a permanent organization. The "Y" usually has a man trained to do this type of work and the boys' work man is usually trained for this particular task. After several years of experimentation a country-wide program has been worked out by all the leading denominational representatives interested in boys' work and the Y. M. C. A. with the result that this entire program is practical, workable, and popular with boys, church leaders and actually produces results in changed lives in boys. This program of activities is called the christian citizenship training program.

For All Boys

The christian citizenship program is so constructed that there is a phase of it for boys of all ages. The first step in this great program is the Friendly Indian group for boys from nine to 12 years of go. The next step is the Pioneers for boys of 12 to 14 years of age. Following this is the Comrades or Hi-Y Clubs for boys of high school age.

The "Friendly Indian" Club is built upon the rich Indian lore that is so dear to every boy's heart. However the real value of this type of club is within the various tests that the boy must take in order to receive recognition before the rest of the club.

The boy earns his tokens which are feathers to be worn in the headband through points that may be gained in the following manner: Points may be gained from any one phase of the program on a basis of 10 points graded according to the excellency of the work. How these points are obtained is as follows:

The quality of the school work counts as points to a member of the club.

Health Habits if following regularly count, one point a week, cleaning teeth daily, drinking glass of water daily on arising, temperance in the use of sweets, nine hours sleep each night, proper exercise.

Attendance at Sunday school merits one point for each Sunday attended or five points for a perfect attendance for a month.

Bible Study such as memory work gives a possible 10 points.

Obtaining a new member for the Sunday School or church adds another five points.

Degrees in Feathers

To obtain a feather an Indian must receive at least 30 points within a month. A higher number of points entitles him to a feather of a higher degree. The Friendly Indian Club promotes a steady growth in a boy's life for good citizenship.

Next on this program are the Pioneers. This program is farther advanced in order to meet the needs of the boy at this age. Boys from 12 to 14 are much father developed than those of Indian are and so have to have a program of a different type. This program is built upon the four sided life, intellectual, physical, devotional and service.

How Club Functions

As a fellow enters the club he is charted in order to see what side of his life is not developed or is lacking in some detail. Then the program is developed to strengthen that side of the boy's life which is weakest. The object is to thus develop each side of a boy's character until it becomes symmetrical.

In each of the four sides there are certain tests or requirements that a boy must meet in order to become an outstanding member of the club.

The intellectual side requires:

In all there 24 projects from which a boy can select a number and successfully complete them. Among them are to conduct a debate or an oratorical contest, conduct a mock trial, study some phase of natural history, make some useful article, have sex talks from some one qualified to give them.

The physical side includes hikes, swimming contests, camp lore, track and field meets, five minutes of physical exercise daily, discussion on health habits, physical examination for all members of the club.

Devotional Side

The devotional side includes attendance at church regularly, conduct boys service in church, undertake to learn a Bible verse each week, have a series of talks on the Bible, compose a group prayer and a group code of living, follow a given course of Bible study, read in successive meetings a good book carrying a strong spiritual message.

The service side includes conduct a father-son banquet, conduct a mother-son banquet, provide supplies for needy families at Christmas time, have a campaign to see all the boys in the neighborhood and urge them to attend church, take up a study of first aid to the injured, have a discussion on "Choosing a Life Work," conduct social affairs for the club.

These comprise a few of the outstanding requirements for the members of the pioneers to meet. This is a new proposition to the city here but is gaining considerable foothold.

Progress To Date

One Poineer Club was established in the First Presbyterian Church during the month of November, 1926, and one Friendly Indian Club was established at the same time in the same church. Another Pioneer Club has been established in the A. M. E. Church on Parkst. This club was established in December, 1926. Several other churches have accepted the program and are preparing to organize the boys.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventures

BY JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

...st almost all night Saturday, ... morning the gutters were ... when me and Jubilee had ...thing done and I had been ... my face shone like a new ... and the bunch had came and ... for Sunday school, we had ... on the sidewalks because ... was so wide in the ditches ... get acrusst. And then ... where the whole street was ... as far as the fences and ... than a block.

... was a bunch of peiple there ... didn't go any further, and one ... said, "A fine bit of engin- ... and I guess he was joking for ... all around and I didn't see ... anywhere. Then a kid we ... know came along on a bicycle ... right into the water, only ... got in deep the Lost Bag of ... picked up a piece of a picket ... floating near the shore and ... and threw it so that it went ... front of the bicycle; and all ... dogs went in after it to see ... could be first to get it and ... bumped against the bicycle and ... all over the fella when he ... in the water.

... he got up the muddy water ... running out of him everywhere. ... Jubilee had the stick in his mouth ... he was strutting his stuff, and the ... came right behind him to where ... was, only he was standing out in ... water and we are on dre land, ... he said, "I can lick the fella that ... that purp," and I said, "You ... lick one side of me, and that ... dog ain't a purp." And he said, "Come in here and I'll show you." I said, "Come on out here and I'll show you."

While we were talking a man came out of the yard by us with a shovel and started to make a drain to drown the water off and his wife called him, and he left the shovel leaning on the fence, and I got it and gave the fella a couple of shovels full of water in the face, and he got his bicycle and rid off, and called us names.

"I can lick the fella that owns that purp"

Today the sun was shining, and the creek down where the pond used to be before we left the water out was high. It was higher than Banty but not so high as me, because we fell in. But we made a fire and dried us so my father didn't know.

Peter's Adventures

A Story for Boys and Girls

BY FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

"A Wonderful Tail"

Chickadee was sorry because Lizzard was sad, but he could think of nothing encouraging to say. The boy, however, at once thought of a way out of Lizzard's troubles.

"Come, come Lizard, don't give up now when you have been brave all along," cried he. "What if you are not strong enough to crack the crust and dig a shelter for yourself! Chickadee has a beak and I have two hands and together we will make short work of it. Keep out for you. Hop up on the log! You will be out of the way there and you can watch us!"

Lizard, deciding that the best thing for him to do was to obey this strange, kind, wise Two-Legs, crawled up to his perch as he had been told. And Chickadee and Peter set to work with a will.

"Ah, ha!" cried Peter suddenly. "I have found a sharp stick. This will help a lot. And 'tis just as I thought. The ground is not so hard, after all. Chickadee's beak has already made a crack in the crust and now it will be easy digging. By the way, Lizard, I do not believe you would have had such a fright this morning if it had not been for your blue tail. Chickadee spied it while he was searching for the early worm and of course had to find out what it belonged to."

"I am sorry I frightened you, Lizard," chirped gentle Chickadee. "If only your tail had been brown or black or gray I might never have seen it."

"Probably not but it is my misfortune to be only a year old and I can't help that, now can I?" Lizard looked from the bird to the boy. "Next winter I shall have a tail that is gray, and the year after (if I don't come to a sad end before), instead of wearing these yellow stripes I shall have put on a coat that is brown. When that happens I shall no longer be young. I shall have settled down into being a quite old Lizard. Come to think of it, it is almost time now I lost this beautiful tail that I love so well! Shall I? Can I? Yes I will!" Lizard stopped speaking and looked at the boy.

"Will what?" demanded Chickadee and Peter at the same second.

"Give my blue tail to you, Two-Legs, for a present! Because you saved my life!" Peter gasped.

"But I don't want your tail, Lizard. What should I do with it?"

"Travel to the ends of the world in the twinkling of an eye!" replied Lizard promptly.

"What fun? But how could I? Shall I have a carpet to ride upon. Once I heard of a little lame prince who sailed through the clouds on a wishing rug but I am only a plain everyday boy, you know."

"That doesn't make a bit of difference!" declared Lizard. "Once a Two-Legs has met a Lizard who has given his tail, all the lucky Two-Legs has to do is close his eyes, and say—

"'Up hill and down hill, over sea and dale.
"'Take me where I wish to go, little Blue-Tail!
"'Ibbety! Bibbety! Fi! Fo! Fum!
"'Bring me back safe again ere night has come!'

"And just as I remarked before, almost before he can say 'Snake-skins' he is on his way to wherever his wish would take him!"

Next: "Come and Take It"

One may like a grouch better after he gets acquainted with him, but who will take the trouble?

THERE IS MONEY IN YOUR ATTIC

This is housecleaning time, time to get rid of those old pieces of furniture you no longer need and which some one wants to buy through the Want Ads for cash.

Today—take a peek in your attic, cellar, garage, store room. Phone an ad—sell those "space fillers." You'll get enough out of them to buy new furniture.

You can even sell your used clothing, tent, canoe, phonograph, ice box, etc., and this is the time to do it.

The cost of an ad is small and you can charge it.

PREDICTS CUBS TO BE STRONGER THIS YEAR

Manager Joe McCarthy Talks of Chances for Chicago Team

C[illegible], April 11—Manager Joe [illegible] back in Chicago with his [illegible] open the National League sea[son to]morrow against the St. Louis [Cardinal]s opened up today with a few [remarks con]cerning the Bruins' chances [in the] race for the pennant.

Mc[Carthy] ranks with President Cool[idge as] the sphinx when it comes to [speech, th]erefore his say, even though [it is base]ball, commands respect. He [says]:

"[The Cu]bs will go into the champion[ship season] surrounded by a few un[certainties] but of one thing I am sure, [we will b]e stronger than a year ago. [If we are] stronger than a year ago, [and the] others have strengthened pro[portionat]ely, we should do as well as in 1926.

"As a matter of fact, I think we will [do better], and if we do better, Chicago is the club the winners will have to beat.

"So far the pitchers have been uncertain but I know more about them than I did in 1926, and if they are off color at the start it won't take me so long to figure out the defects and correct them, at least make the attempt to correct them.

"Anyway, we will give the best we have, and for me, the best is a pennant. But that is a hope, not a prediction."

INDIANS PREPARE

Cleveland Outfit to Meet White Sox In First Game Tuesday

Cleveland, April 11—Back on their own reservation, the Cleveland Indians today will engage in a final pre-season practice at Dunn field. Big George Uhle, the American League's premier pitcher in 1926, who will probably start on the mound for Cleveland Tuesday in the opening game with Chicago, visited the home lot Sunday and whizzed a few across the plate, while his team mates were dropping their last exhibition game of the season to the Cincinnati Reds at Cincinnati.

The White Sox, lead by Manager Ray Schalk, arrived in the city Sunday night. Ted Lyons, well known jinx of the Indians, will probably be Schalk's choice to start the hurling for Chicago Tuesday.

SENATORS READY

Columbus Nine, Under Leadership of Ivy Wingo, Play Blues Tuesday

Columbus, April 11—Back home from the long training trip, the Columbus Senators were to make their initial appearance on their home field, under the leadership of Ivy Wingo, their new pilot, in a final practice event with the Buffalo Bisons, of the International League. The Senators arrived from Chattanooga, Tenn., where their practice game with the Southern Association club was raised out.

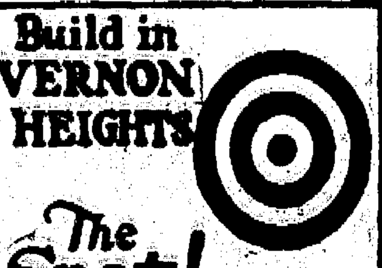

The Senators will open the regular league season with Kansas City's club on the Columbus home field tomorrow. The usual opening day festivities have been arranged, with Governor Donahey pitching the first ball, and a semi-holiday being observed in Columbus.

LOANS up to $500

Given the same opportunities which have made thousands of others successful, you can succeed if you have faith in your own ability to do what others can. Indeed, nothing can stop you; and the easiest way to reach the highway of success is to establish a sound credit for yourself first of all. This is imperative: Pay your bills promptly. Never let the "butcher, baker and candle-stick maker" dun you for money you owe them. You have no valid excuse for it, because The City Loan solves such problems so easily.

When you happen to be hard up for any reason (and that is liable to be the lot of the majority at some time) borrow through the well-known City Loan system on your own security like thousands of others do. The City Loan trusts worthy borrowers. We have established a great loan business upon the principle that character and paying ability are the two greatest assets that a borrower can have.

HEAVY SALES CHECK STOCK PRICE ADVANCE

New York Market Maintains Buoyancy Despite Sale Offerings of Size

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroads stocks strong; industrials steady; domestic bonds steady; foreign bonds firm; call money 4 1-4 per cent; grain steady copper steady; oil weak; cotton steady; rubber steady; sugar irregular; pig iron steady; foreign exchange steady.

New York, April 11—Though the general tone of the stock market today was strong and buoyant, neither the industrial stocks nor the rails were able to make much progress because of the heavy offerings of stocks on the "bulges," a policy which appears to have won wide adherence in the financial district.

Good first-quarterly business and "easy" money were the outstanding factors in stimulating speculative demand for stocks. The pools and professionals whipped up a few of the motor and specialty stocks in which there was a sleeping short interest. Stocks of the metal companies, steel, copper and nickel moved upward moderately before encountering any large offerings, and thus were able to show some improvement over last week's best prices. International nickels advance to 51, compared to last week's price of 41⅜, was a feature of this move.

Though the reserves of the New York banks made a gain of $104,570,000 last week, there were heavy withdrawals of funds from the call loan market. This was for the accommodation of the interior banks, and was not expected to cause any serious tightening of the money situation as a whole. The first quarterly operation and production estimates were very favorable, while car-loading and bank clearing figures showed unmistakably the high rate of the distribution of goods in domestic trade.

OFFICIALS GUARDED

Precautions Taken for Fear of Reprisals in Sacco-Vanzetti Case

Washington, April 11—Extraordinary precautions have been taken to guard high government officials because of the death sentence in the Sacco-Vanzetti case in Massachusetts.

Whether actual threats have been made against their lives was not divulged, but an armed guard has been assigned to protect the house of Secretary of State Kellogg, and other precautions have been taken.

The government has had nothing to do with the Sacco-Vanzetti case, but a worldwide sympathy has been stirred up in their behalf. This has resulted in a number of demonstrations at American embassies and legations abroad.

GIANTS TO OPEN SEASON MINUS BEVO'S SERVICES

New York, April 11—Having beaten Brooklyn again, 4 to 3, by virtue of three hits by Babe Ruth and Wiley Moore's pitching, the Yankees today were ready for the opening gong.

The Giants will start the season minus the services of "Bevo" Lebourveau, outfielder who set the American Association on fire while with Toledo last season. He will be sent back to Toledo. The Giants today will tune up for the opener by playing the West Point cadets.

STRIBLING VS. LOUGHRAN

New York, April 11—Young Stribling of Georgia and Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia have been matched by Promoter Humbert Fugazy for his opening outdoor show at Ebbets field in Brooklyn on May 4, subject to approval by the state athletic commission. Their bout is scheduled for ten rounds.

COFFEE FUTURES

New York, April 11—The coffee futures market opened barely steady today. Initial prices were at net losses of 5 to 12 points.

May opened 13.60, down 5; July 12.53, down 12 and September 11.86, down 10.

COTTON MARKET

New York, April 11—Cotton prices opened lower today, down six to seven points. May opened at 14.08, down 06; July, 14.29, down 06 and October 14.54, down 07.

White collars and cuffs suggestive of Puritan days are being adopted by many women with new tailor-made suits.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Prices on local markets were unchanged this morning, but stocks were very low, heavy buying over Saturday cutting heavily into the supplies of fruits and vegetables.

Strawberries, selling at 35 cents a quart, were bought heavier than at any other time this season and there were very few to be found in stores today. The berries sold strong all day Saturday, and many stores could have sold more than they had on hand. The demand during the week for strawberries is light.

Municipal Sewer Inspection Department Being Planned

SEWAGE PLANT OVERTAXED BY FLOOD WATERS

Urgent Need of Protecting System Cited; Requires Supervisor, Claim

Urgent need of protecting Marion's new sewage disposal plant from serious damage is expected to result in establishing a municipal sewer inspection department in the near future for the purpose of remedying defects in the city's drainage system and maintaining closer control over sewer construcion work in the future.

This was indicated today when members of City Council were informed that the sewage plant was greatly overtaxed by storm water during the heavy rainfall of several weeks ago and that continuance of the conditions which caused the overload is extremely dangerous and might result in extensive damage.

Bad Connections

Only sanitary sewage is supposed to pass through the disposal plant but because of cross connections in the city's sewer system the plant is also called upon to handle a large amount of storm water. This presents no serious difficulties when rainfall is of only normal proportions but is extremely menacing at the time of a deluge like that which occurred several weeks ago, city officials say.

Appointment of a sewer inspector who would have complete supervision and control over the city's drainage system has been recommended as a solution to the problem. This official would not only supervise all sewer construction in the future but would make a survey of the city for the purpose of eliminating the numerous cross connections which now exist.

Should the inspector be appointed and the survey made, it is estimated that hundreds of citizens would be required to change the outlet of both storm water and sanitary drains at homes and business places.

Makes Report

Superintendent Brown of the sewage plant has reported to council that the plant was tremendously overtaxed during the recent heavy rain, the register there showing a flow of water greatly beyond normal capacity. The condition would not exist if all storm water drains were properly connected, it is said.

The superintendent has also reported that considerable damage was done to the plant by washouts during the rain and he urged that steps be taken to prevent a recurrence of the trouble in the future.

It is expected that the matter will be discussed at tonight's council meeting.

For several years the state board of health has been urging this city to correct defects in its sewer system by eliminating the cross connections. Recently an engineer from the board was present at a council meeting and suggested that establishing of a sewer inspection department would probably be the best means of correction.

Cost Small, Claim

Operation of the inspection service would cost comparatively little at the outset and eventually the department would become self sustainning on a fee basis, it is claimed.

Regardless of cost, however, some members of council have stated, the city can not afford to permit a situation to continue which may result in serious damage not only to the city's valuable sewage plant but in menacing public health.

Flying Over Ocean Easier Than Over Arctic

NEW YORK, April 12—"I flew over the North Pole with Commander Byrd and, after that experience, I'm not figuring our New York-to-Paris non-stop flight will be so awfully hazardous. It will not be an easy undertaking, to be sure, but I am confident it will be accomplished—and within a comparatively short time."

In a quiet and modest manner, Floyd Bennett, probably the most resourceful air pilot in the world, made these statements today in an interview with International News Service in which he discussed plans for a non-stop transatlantic flight to take place next month in the monoplane "America," navigated by Commander Richard E. Byrd, U. S. N., leader of last year's North Pole expedition, with Bennett again as his pilot.

"I'd rather fly over the ocean any time than over the pole," said Bennett, smiling. "If you come down your chances are better."

BENNETT, a slender, athletic man with steely blue eyes, predicted that the "America" or some other airplane will fly to Paris this year and that, in about 10 years, people will be riding back and forth across the ocean with as little compunction as they do today from London to Paris.

The distance from New York to Paris is 3,600 miles. Right now there is sort of a "race" between the commanders of several specially-built planes to see who will be the first to negotiate the flight.

Commander Byrd and Bennett probably will hop off next month. Commander Noel Davis, U. S. N., already has made a test flight in his giant yellow-colored "American Legion." He, too, probably will leave in May, with Lieut. Stanton H. Wooster as his aide. Clarence Chamberlain and Bert Acosta were today making a 50-hour endurance flight over New York City in a Wright-Bellanca monoplane as a test for a transatlantic trip. Then, also, Charles A. Linbergh, air mail aviator, is planning a flight to Paris. His Ryan monoplane, equipped with Wright whirlwind motors, is expected to hop off next week, from San Diego for a test flight to St. Louis.

"NO matter what airplane makes the Paris flight it will be a great impetus to aviation," said Bennett. "I am confident it will be made this year.

"How long it will take to fly to Paris is a matter of conjecture but I think it may be done in as low as 35 hours and perhaps it will require as long as 45 hours. Navigation is the big thing. The distance will be cut if the navigation is properly handled. We are fortunate in having a most able and experienced navigator in Commander Byrd.

[illegible] is not a 'stunt' flight with us. Neither are we competing for a prize. We are seriously trying to prove what can be done with aviation from a commercial standpoint. We hope the flight will have real significance as to the future. We hope to aid in the advancement of commercial aviation.

"I believe that in about 10 years, when multi-motor planes will be in operation, that people will fly [illegible] from this country to Europe and back with utmost safety. There are a number of one-motor planes that I believe can safely make the trip across without interruption.

"But people will never ride in one-motor planes, knowing it the

CHINA AGAIN IN FERMENT WHILE FACTIONS FIGHT

COOLIDGE IS HOPEFUL

President and Cabinet Discuss Protests Made For Outrages at Nanking

[illegible], April 12—Nationalist-controlled China is in a state of ferment [illegible] according to reports reaching [illegible].

Martial law is reported to have been declared in Amoy with Nationalist troops under right wing leaders making arrests among the ex[tremists].

[illegible] reports state that Nationalists there are engaged in looting and [illegible] is in a high state of excitement due to the possibility of a northern attack. Northern planes continue to bomb Nanking and Pukow intermittently.

Raids made by the Nationalist troops [on] extremists in Shanghai last night resulted in the arrest of 200 [illegible] communists and the capture [of] [illegible] rifles and two machine-guns.

CABINET CONSIDERS CERTAIN "MEASURES"

Washington, April 12—The perplexing question of what "measures" will [be] taken by the United States and [the] foreign powers in China to enforce the demands made upon the Nationalists in the event the Nationalists' response to the powers' notes is unsatisfactory—occupied the attention of administration officials today.

China was again the most important subject before the cabinet at its regular Tuesday meeting.

Although the powers' notes concluded with a warning that unless the Nationalist authorities demonstrate to the satisfaction of the interested governments their intention to comply promptly with these terms, the said governments will find themselves compelled to take such measures as they consider appropriate," there exists no agreement between the powers upon a course of action, it was stated authoritatively here.

Confidence was expressed by President Coolidge after today's cabinet meeting that the Nationalists will comply with the demands of the foreign powers. Because this government feels certain of compliance by the Chinese, [no] policy has been agreed upon in the event of non-compliance, it was stated.

NATIONALISTS MAKE FRANTIC EFFORTS

Shanghai, April 12—The Nationalist government of China probably will reply to the protests of the powers against the Nanking incidents with a demand for an inquiry to fix the responsibility and without creating any machinery for fixing the damages.

The five principal powers concerned [illegible] will be asked to name commissioners to conduct the suggested inquiry.

Chinese Nationalists today were making frantic efforts to strengthen their position, with every indication that they are fearful of losing Nanking and with the loss of Shanghai to the Northerners even within the realm of possibilities.

While the northern troops are [fighting] the Nationalists on the northern banks of the Yangtze, the Nationalists have had difficulties within Shanghai and have engaged in sharp fighting with guerillas in their attempts to disarm them. Thirteen Chinese are reported dead and probably 100 wounded as the result of the fight between the Nationalists and the guerillas, who [illegible] had the support of the general labor union, which the Nationalists now appear to be opposing.

The Nationalists announce that hereafter mass meetings can be held only [by] permission and military punishment [is] threatened for offenders.

LEGISLATURE MAY ADJOURN ON THURSDAY

House Members in Caucus Agree to Recess Until Wednesday, April 20

Columbus, April 12—Agreement to recess the Ohio legislature next Thursday night until Wednesday, April 20, subject to the concurrence by the senate, was reached here this afternoon at a caucus of Republican members of the house.

The house caucus agreement it was stated, also provided for a two-weeks' recess starting Friday, April 22. The question whether the solons will adjourn sine die after the proposed two-weeks' recess, or recess for "five-minutes" subject to the call of the presiding officers of both houses, was not determined, it was said.

House leaders expressed the belief that the major bills now pending can all be disposed of by April 22.

Agreement, it was stated, was made whereby Speaker Gray was to withhold temporarily his signature to the Dodd bill, which has passed both the house and senate providing for a half-mill direct state tax levy.

Under a technical "five-minute" recess, the solons would remain in recess indefinitely.

ATTEMPT TO ESTABLISH ENDURANCE FLIGHT MARK

Monoplane Carrying 2,800 Pounds Hops Off With Comparative Ease

Mineola, N. Y., April 12—A Bellanca monoplane piloted by Bert Acosta and Clarence C. Chamberlain took off at Roosevelt Field at 9:30 o'clock this morning in an attempt to make a sustained flight of 50 hours and set a new world record. Part of the flight will be over New York City.

This plane may later attempt the dash from New York to Paris in an effort to win Raymond Orteig's $25,000 prize. This depends largely upon the test started today.

The world record for sustained flight is 45 hours, 11 minutes and 59 seconds made in France in August, 1925, by Pilots Droughin and Landry.

Weather conditions were ideal. It was fairly warm and the sun was shining brightly.

The aviators took along as food a dozen sandwiches, two thermos bottles of coffee, two bottles of soup and a dozen chocolate almond bars.

The flight is being supervised by the National Aeronautical Association.

The monoplane took off from the same runway upon which Capt. Rene Fonck, the French ace, disastrously tried to make a start last year for a flight to Paris.

Carrying a load of 2,800 pounds the machine rose into the air with comparative ease and soared over Mineola and then headed for New York City.

Bodies of Crash Victims Are Laid to Rest in Single Grave in Marion Cemetery

Last Rites for Mrs. Iscah Parker, 26, and Infant Daughters, Catherine, 3, and Robert, Four Months, Held at Home and Church

The final chapter of a grim tragedy was written among the green mounds in Marion Cemetery this afternoon when the large grave received the bodies of Mrs. Iscah Minerva Parker, 26, and her two infant daughters, Catherine LaVerne, 3, and Roberta Joan, four months, victims of an accident at the Pennsylvania crossing on Prospect-rd just south of the city Saturday night.

MRS. PARKER

Roberta Joan, the baby, was laid to rest in the same casket with its mother. The other child in its small casket was buried beside the mother and smaller sister.

Of the happy family of four which started to Marion from Columbus to spend the week-end here with relatives only the husband and father, Willard Parker, 25, survived the accident. He sustained only minor injuries and was dismissed from City Hospital yesterday afternoon.

Last rites for the three crash victims were conducted at the home of Mr. Parker's step-father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Zimmer, 890 Woodrow-av, at 2 o'clock, followed by services at 2:30 o'clock at Trinity Baptist Church. Dr. U. S. Davis, pastor of Trinity, assisted by Rev. Irvin Kauffman, pastor of Greenwood Evangelical Church, had charge of the services.

Attending the services were Mr. Parker, the sole survivor of the crash, his step-father and mother, and Mrs. Parker's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Byers, 151 Franconia-av, with whom Mr. and Mrs. Parker had planned to spend the week-end. Other relatives and close friends attended.

Contents Reported to Have Connection With Alleged "Leak" at Embassy

Mexico City, April 12—United States Ambassador Sheffield has received a note from Washington for presentation to the Mexican foreign office today, it was learned at the embassy. The contents were not revealed.

There were some reports here that the note concerned an alleged "leak" in the American embassy. It was reported that documents had been stolen from the embassy and it was believed that an American citizen might have been responsible. Conjecture was rife as to whether the note concerned the possible arrest of a suspect by the Mexican government.

NOTE SUBJECT NOT MAJOR CONTROVERSY

Washington, April 12—The American note handed the Mexican foreign office by Ambassador Sheffield today had to do with the arrest and subsequent release of Miguel Avila, an American citizen, it was reported here today.

The state department said the note had nothing to do with the pending major controversy with Mexico over the land and petroleum laws.

Barthelmess, however, is reported to object to this proposal, as Singapore is outside of the jurisdiction of the court in which he and Miss Hay were divorced. Furthermore, Bathelmess is said to have pointed out, the court awarded custody of the child to each parent for six months of the year.

BANDIT SLAIN, THREE TAKEN AFTER HOLDUP

Robbers Believed To Have Thrown Away About $4,000 of Jewelry Loot

Lodi, April 12—One bandit is dead and three others are under arrest today, following a dramatic holdup staged by the quartet in Max Smith's jewelry store here late Monday afternoon.

Unmasked and with guns drawn, the four robbers entered the store and, after forcing two women, who were in the store, into a corner and trussing Smith up with tape, made their getaway with approximately $5,000 in money and jewels.

D. D. Leyda, entering the store shortly afterward, discovered Smith's predicament and gave the alarm.

The women still were cowering in a corner.

A sheriff's posse, after a wild chase, finally cornered the gunmen in a woods several miles from the scene of the holdup. Scores of shots were exchanged and during the fusilade one of the bandits known as "Jack," according to his companions, fell dead. The other three surrendered.

Part of the loot was recovered but a search still is being made for about $4,000 worth of jewelry, believed to have been thrown away by the robbers during their flight.

SEN. WILLIS PREDICTS ANOTHER COOLIDGE TERM

Says President's Veto of Farm Bill Will Not Affect Votes

Washington, April 12—A prediction that President Coolidge and Vice President Dawes will both be nominated and re-elected next year was made here today by Senator Frank B. Willis, Republican of Ohio.

Willis spent half an hour with Mr. Coolidge, reporting to him his political impressions after swinging about the middle west. He told the president that the veto of the McNary-Haugen Farm Bill had not injured him politically in the grain belt.

"Why," said the Ohio senator upon leaving the White House, "the president can carry Iowa today, and all the other states out here, too. The issue there is not farm relief, but prohibition, and they're for the president because he is dry.

"Al Smith might carry New York if he is nominated by the Democrats, but he won't get far in the middle west."

IMPROVEMENT OF W. CENTER-ST IS AUTHORIZED

City Council Approves Resolution for Repaving of Business Thoroughfare

Another step in preliminary arrangements for constructing a new paving on W. Center-st next year was taken by City Council last night when a resolution authorizing the improvement was adopted.

In a discussion which preceded the vote on the resolution, council members and other city officials were practically unanimous in favoring construction of a complete new paving with concrete base in preference to resurfacing. This is said to be in full accord with the wishes of property owners on the thoroughfare, some of whom, it was stated, have declared that they would have refused to sign the petition if they thought that the improvement would be nothing but a resurfacing job.

Board to Decide

The resolution adopted last night provides for either resurfacing or an entire new paving, leaving the choice up to the city board of control, which awards all street improvement contracts. This board consists of the mayor, safety director and service director. It is understood, however, that unless something unforeseen occurs to change the situation, no consideration will be given to a resurfacing proposal.

The discussion was brought about by a question from Councilman R. E. Prettyman when the resolution came up for its first vote. He stated that experience has shown that old pavings here and in other cities have provided a substantial base for resurfacing work and that the cost is much less than the expense of laying an entire new paving.

Mr. Prettyman expressed the opinion that council should not take final action on the W. Center-st improvement project until the program of procedure has been definitely determined. Although council has agreed to have W. Center-st paved next year, he believes that preliminary plans should not be concluded until it is known just what the condition of the city's finances will be later on, indicating that funds might not be available to pay for a new paving.

Explain Project

City Engineer Cathers and City Solicitor Gergn explained that the W. Center-st project will not pass from council's control for several months and that there will be ample opportunity to change the plans should this be deemed advisable. Council must pass an or-

WHISKY RUNNER TAKEN BY LAKE COAST GUARD

Rum Cruiser Fired on When It Fails to Answer Challenge Signal

Cleveland, April 12—Prospects of successful rum running between Canada and the United States this summer if such ventures are planned, appeared at low ebb today, following receipts of details here this morning which told of the capture of a rum-runner by the government coast guard boat CG-120, about 15 miles off Toledo last night, in Lake Erie.

The CG-120 sighted a 35-foot cruiser, federal authorities said, and when no answer was forthcoming to a challenge signal, the coast guard vessel opened fire, wounding Edward Becker, alleged whisky-runner, and bringing immediate surrender of the liquor laden craft.

Leo Vermott, and Becker, the only persons found aboard the smuggler, were brought to Cleveland, where Becker was removed to City hospital. Vermott is held by federal authorities for investigation. Both of the men claim to be from Toledo.

Twenty-seven cases of whisky and 100 cases of beer were found on board the rum runner, which Vermott declared had "shoved off" from Emsburg, Canada, for a point near Sandusky, Ohio, where they were scheduled to meet a truck.

CARROLL SURRENDERS TO SERVE TERM IN PRISON

Theatrical Producer Leaves New York Today For Atlanta Penitentiary

New York, April 12—Resigned to the inevitable, Earl Carroll, theatrical producer, surrendered to United States Marshal William Hecht at the federal building today to serve a term of a year and a day in Atlanta Penitentiary for perjury.

Carroll smiled when he came to the marshal's office and told reporters he was "a good loser." He was to depart from the Pennsylvania Station at 3:40 o'clock this afternoon with 20 other prisoners who are to "do a stretch."

Carroll was accompanied by his two brothers James and Norman Carroll, and Thomas Rooney, confidential adviser, as he surrendered.

He shook hands cordially with Marshal Hecht. Then they chatted in low tones.

All Carroll would say to the newspapermen was:

"Goodbye boys. I'm a good loser."

Ever since he was convicted, on May 27, 1926, of his perjury in connection with the wine "bathtub" party at his theater, Carroll has recoiled at the prospect of "doing time." He tried to obtain executive clemency at Washington recently but failed.

Carroll, as a result of his conviction and incarceration, loses not only his liberty, but his citizenship. He also must pay a $2,000 fine.

Marietta, April 12—Arthur W. Fish, 33 former teller of the Central National Bank of Marietta, today was sentenced from one to 10 years in the Ohio Penitentiary when he pleaded guilty to a charge of embezzlement. Fish voluntarily surrendered and confessed his shortage about six weeks ago on the day that the bank directors closed the doors of the institution. Auditors at work in the bank have not yet completed their investigations at the bank.

The former teller told the court he had used the money in caring for his and his wife's sick relatives.

His wife and two small children were not in court when sentence was passed.

THREE YOUTHS HELD IN KENTON HOTEL HOLDUP

Two Plead Guilty And Are Bound Over to Grand Jury

IDENTIFIED BY CLERK

Unmasked Trio Rifles Strong Box of $208 in Cash, $82 in Checks

Kenton, April 12—Three hours after they held up the St. Nicholas Hotel here at 1 o'clock this morning, getting away with $208 in cash and $82 in checks, three Kenton youths were under arrest and part of the loot was recovered.

The boys under arrest are Paul Fitzpatrick, 17, Donald Campbell, 17 and Donald Garvin, 18.

With caps pulled down over their faces to hide as much as possible of their features, and with Fitzpatrick and Garvin armed with guns, the boys entered the hotel at 1 o'clock, and covering night clerk Roe McCleary, rifled the strong box of its contents. They got all the money and checks in the box, but overlooked $35 in the cash register and some money at the cigar stand.

One Recognized

McCleary recognized Fitzpatrick, he told police, whom he notified as soon as the youths had disappeared with the money and checks. Fitzpatrick, McCleary said, had covered him while Campbell rifled the strong box, and Garvin watched for chance intruders, who might spoil the holdup by coming into the hotel.

Police immediately rounded up Fitzpatrick at his home, and later got the other boys at their homes. McCleary identified Fitzpatrick.

Campbell and Fitzpatrick were taken before Probate Judge Isaac McElroy this morning and pleaded guilty. They were bound over to the grand jury, which is now in session, under $1,000 bond. Garvin's case is to be brought before the grand jury by Prosecutor Loucks Brown.

Recover $123

Police recovered $123 of the money taken from the strong box, but had not found the rest this morning. According to police, the boys buried the checks, and it is believed the rest of the money under the Erie trestle, west of Kenton.

Police stated that the boys told a story of planning to go to California and used this method of getting funds for the trip. They planned the holdup two weeks ago, police said, and carried it out last night as planned. They did not use masks, trusting to the caps pulled over their eyes to hide their identity. In Fitzpatrick's case this was not enough, as McCleary recognized him.

SOFTENING OF CITY WATER IS BEING PLANNED

Preliminary Arrangements for New Plant Nearly Ready; Work To Start Soon

Preliminary plans for the $150,000 water softening system to be installed by the Marion Water Co. are nearing completion and actual work of installation will be started in the near future, George H. Whysall, manager of the company, stated today.

Bids on the large amount of material to be used in the project are now being received by Mr. Whysall and contracts are being closed as rapidly as possible. It is expected that all of these preliminary details will be completed so that work on the softening system can be started as soon as weather conditions are satisfactory.

"We do not propose to start an undertaking as important and as costly as this until absolutely certain that the weather is just right," the Water company manager says.

Company In Charge

The company is to handle the general construction and installation work through the supervision of its own officials, so that the only contracts let will be for special work and purchase of material and supplies.

The softening system will be completed early in the fall, according to present plans. It is to be installed in accordance with provisions of the water company's new franchise, granted by council about a year ago.

Water rates are to be increased slightly when the softener is placed in use but it is claimed that the benefits to be derived will considerably offset the additional charge to consumers.

HOW TO GO THROUGH COLLEGE

Would you be willing to wash dishes, sweep floors, wait on tables, tend to babies and darn hose in order to get an education? Approximately 24 per cent of the girls at the University of Kansas, at Lawrence, consider education important enough to do those and other tasks.

Miss Alta Hendricks, a freshman, makes all her expenses working in a beauty parlor. Between appointments for marcels and permanent waves, she studies. Miss Hendricks lives in Topeka, Kas.

Among the workers with the longest hours is Miss Grace Beard, of Williamstown, Kas., a sophomore. She is employed in the Lawrence, Kas., telephone exchange from 10 o'clock to 1:30 o'clock each day, returning at 5:30 to work to 10 o'clock at night. She is entirely self-supporting.

Folk Who Think Norris is Worn Out Due for Surprise

His Senate Term Doesn't Expire Until 1931; Then His Plans Are—

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, April 12—His friends have a way of referring to Senator George W. Norris softly, tenderly and reverently, as "old Uncle George."

GEORGE W. NORRIS

They say he's quite worn out with politics and doesn't mean to run for the senate ever any more. He does have aspirations in the direction of the Nebraska governorship for a quiet term or two, or three, or as long as he lives, but that's merely to "round out his career."

To hear this kind of talk, from those closest to him you'd get an idea that "Uncle George," while undoubtedly a humdinger in his day is nearly "all in" now, and mustn't rough it, as he used to could, or he'll break some of his brittle old bones.

I know for a fact that a lot of people imagine Senator Norris has reached a point where he has to be kept in cotton wool.

I know it because folk who don't know him by sight are continually turning up in Washington and asking to have him pointed out to them—since he's a celebrity—and when he is, the visitor almost invariably exclaims, "What! That him!" in an astonished tone, and goes away muttering some such thing as that he looks like as good a risk as any life insurance agent could ask.

Stories of "Uncle George's" expected retirement probably are largely responsible for giving the public a wrong slant on him. Reports that a previously very active man's on the eve of retiring naturally give rise to the conclusion that he's wearing out.

BUT mind you, "Uncle George's retirement isn't exactly imminent. His present senate term doesn't expire until March 1931. It's true he says he won't be a candidate for re-election, but he may change his mind. He did the last time.

Even if he sticks to his determination to let the senatorship slide, four years hence, and to go after the Nebraska governorship instead, his prospective gubernatorial program sounds rather strenuous.

It includes the wiping out of all party lines, a 50-50 reduction in the number of state officials, transformation of the legislature into a uni-cameral body of not more than 25 members and governmentalization of all public utilities.

This may be "Uncle George's" definition of "retirement," but it isn't most politician's—not in the strict sense of the word.

AS a looker, "Uncle George" is far from fragile.

He's 66, yes, but in an extraordinarily good state of repair. Sixty-six isn't so old, for a senator, anyway. At the same age, Senator Jim Reed's threatening to run for president.

The Nebraskan's tallish and large-framed, with no superfluous avoirdupois.

His get-up is prosperously farmerish, or maybe country lawyerish—that being what he is, probably the latter. He looks countrified at all events. He suggests rural Nebraska, in short.

He chaws terbacker, if I err not.

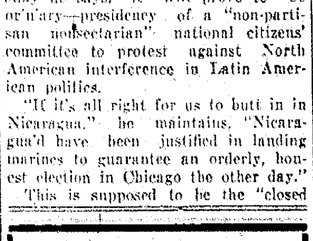

* * *

"UNCLE GEORGE" but recently accepted the honorary—or possibly he says, it will prove to be or'n'ary—presidency of a "non-partisan nonsectarian" national citizens' committee to protest against North American interference in Latin American politics.

"If it's all right for us to butt in in Nicaragua," he maintains, "Nicaragua'd have been justified in landing marines to guarantee an orderly, honest election in Chicago the other day."

This is supposed to be the "closed season" for such senatorial sniping at the administration, but "Uncle George" who doesn't care a darn for any rules of the game, still lingers in Washington, taking a pot shot whenever he sees a good chance, whether congress is in session or not.

MARVELOUS WORK OF NEW KONJOLA MEDICINE TOLD

Stump Pharmacy To Introduce Advanced Remedy; Larger Cities Have It.

If you were told that one single medicine put hundreds of men and women back to work in the Ohio Valley (around Cincinnati) after they had been idle for months with health troubles, it would sound impossible, wouldn't it?

THE KONJOLA MAN

And that countless people were so completely relieved of rheumatism and neuritis that they were able to walk normally again, without cane or crutches; and that this same medicine restored health to men and women who suffered stomach and kidney troubles for years, and that complete relief had come in cases of misery where health resorts, expensive treatments and medicine upon medicine had failed—indeed, it seems impossible. Yet it is all true, and a man is coming to Marion on Thursday to prove that these things are true and can be accomplished right here in this city.

The medicine referred to is the new Konjola, and the Konjola Man himself will be at Stump and Sams, (formerly Stump Pharmacy), 121 South Main St., Marion, starting Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. He will talk to everyone personally and explain this celebrated compound. He will also pass out literature regarding Konjola and give away free samples of this surprising medical preparation.

Wherever introduced, this Konjola has proven to be vastly more effective in thousands of cases of ill-health than any previously known medicine. It is a remarkable liquid compound for the following well-known troubles:

RHEUMATISM: Especially severe cases, where pains are intense, muscles swollen, joints stiff and rigid. In milder cases of this disease Konjola relieves the suffering almost at once, and this medicine brings the same results for neuritis victims that it produces for rheumatic sufferers.

STOMACH, LIVER, KIDNEY and BOWEL troubles:—Nearly all forms of misery that arise from these unhealthy organs have been so quickly relieved by Konjola that men and women sufferers were surprised everywhere. It is the action of this medicine on these organs of the inner-system that removes toxic poisons from the body and brings quick relief in so many cases. The secret of this Konjola is the way it acts upon the important functionary organs of the body, namely the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. So many diseases and long-standing disorders of these organs were so soon conquered and entirely banished by this new compound that thousands of people in other larger cities were able to give up the taking of all medicine for time to come.

After the great accomplishments and wonderful work of Konjola in other sections, it is declared that this medicine is what thousands of sufferers in Marion and vicinity have long needed to actually reach their cases, and preparations are being made for the care of large crowds at the Stump Pharmacy.

As stated before, the Konjola Man will be here at Stump and Sams, (formerly Stump Pharmacy), 121 South Main St., Marion, starting Thursday, April 14th at 9 o'clock sharp, and will daily meet the public and introduce and explain Konjola. Free samples given. —Adv.

Pain in Your Shoulder?

It's Probably Neuritis; Use Tysmol for Relief

Knife-like jabs of pain in the vicinity of the shoulder blade are generally due to neuritis. Brought on by exposure to draughts or sudden changes of weather. In some cases there is stiffness or soreness in the muscles, making it difficult to raise the arm.

The safest and easiest way to relieve such an attack is to apply a small quantity of Tysmol over the affected area. This soothing, healing preparation is quickly absorbed through the pores and carried to the throbbing, aching peripheral nerves. The pains usually stop at once, and in a very short time the last trace of soreness should disappear.

Tysmol is absolutely harmless—free from dope. Recommended for all forms of nerve pain, whether caused by neuritis, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. You can get a good supply for $1 at any drug store. Always on hand at

FIRST SALE OF 1927 BONDS TO BE HELD MAY 2

Two Issues Totaling $38,716.-71 To Be Sold; To Seek Lower Rate

Marion's first sale of municipal bonds for 1927 will take place on May 2. Bids are to be opened on two issues totaling $38,716.71, which were recently authorized by council to pay the city's portion of street improvement construction work.

The interest rate on these issues is an important feature of the offering, due to the fact that an effort will be made to establish a lower rate than that which has been paid on Marion bonds during the last few years.

The prevailing rate for several years has been five and a half per cent and it is believed that in the future this can be reduced to five per cent, which is the rate fixed for the two issues to be sold May 2. In case these issues are taken up readily it will probably result in all future bonds being sold on a five per cent basis.

Demand Good

Marion bonds have always been in big demand with buyers, despite the fact that considerable publicity was given to unfavorable condition of municipal finances here for several years and it was feared for a time that this might be detrimental to the city's credit.

The fact of the matter is, however, that the city has never reached the point where it was in danger of being unable to pay its debt and interest promptly and bond buyers have always been well aware of that circumstance.

Prior to the beginning of the World War, Marion bonds and those of other cities of sound financial rating sold at interest rates as low as four per cent and none ever went above four and a half. Then when the war came on and created an abnormal demand for funds, rates moved upward and it finally became necessary to pay as high as six per cent on some of the local securities. When the period of post-war readjustment started, the rate was reduced to five and a half per cent and this schedule has remained in effect up to this time.

Issues sold last year at five and a half per cent brought premiums of substantial proportions, which tended to offset the high interest rate. It is expected that premiums on five per cent bonds, such as those to be offered for sale May 2, will be smaller.

Soundest Policy

Local city officials in charge of the financial program believe, however, that sale of bonds at the lowest possible rate of interest, regardless of the premiums paid, is the soundest and best policy.

The two issues to be sold May 2 are one of $37,486.81 to pay the city's part of resurfacing Columbia-st from Davids-st to High-st and Blaine-av between Center and Church-st, and one of $1,229.90 for the city's portion on several sewer projects.

The first issue will run for 10 years beginning Sept. 1, 1927, and the other will be for five years, beginning on the same date.

Bids will be opened at the office of City Auditor J. L. Landes at noon, May 2, and proposals are expected from practically all of the state's leading bond houses.

CANCER LEADS LIST OF DEATH CAUSES IN CITY

Heart disease, which ranked first for several months as the principal cause of death in the city of Marion, went into fourth place last month, being led during March by cancer, pneumonia and apoplexy.

Cancer claimed six lives, pneumonia and apoplexy five each, and heart disease four, the March report of Miss Esther Dickason, city registrar of vital statistics, disclosed when made public today.

It is great to have a clear skin

A clear skin means everything to the popularity of men and women. You cannot get it with external applications. If you are unfortunate enough to have pimples or skin blemishes, in justice to your friends and yourself, you should treat the source of the trouble. Nature will then provide the complexion which is so much desired.

Thousands have been enabled to free themselves of unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S. It improves the processes by S.S.S.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles by which the blood is nourished.

"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S. S. S., which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin and makes you strong and fills you with energy." Mrs. J. W. Barker, 337 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

S.S.S. is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory. It is time-tried and reliable.

Ten-Year Yacht Cruise to Strange Seas Begun by Man

HONOLULU, Hawaii, April 12.—The seaman who became a millionaire and the lumber schooner that became his electric yacht, are going around the world.

Med R. Kellum, Miami, Fla., capitalist, who lives with his wife and children on board the former San Francisco windjammer, "Luzon," now the "Kaimiloa," says he is prepared for the longest cruise of his life.

Arriving here by liner from San Francisco he expects to sail in his yacht on May 1 for a circuit of the globe, which he believes will take from seven to ten years.

On Board "For Life"

Simultaneously Kellum let it be known that he is determined to live on board the "Kaimiloa," for the remainder of his days, having found this his "ideal existence."

"I began as a poor sailor before the mast," says the millionaire, "and I went back to the sea as soon as I could afford it. The 'Kaimiloa' is a good staunch windjammer, with an engine to carry through the calms. I shall cruise about the world, in the path of good weather, as long as I please."

Kellum, with his wife and two of his children, went to San Francisco some time ago from Honolulu, after a three years' cruise in little known isles of the South Seas.

Children With Him

He will take four children with him around the world—Antoinette, 19; Ada, 17; Jim, 14, and Anna, 5. His wife, the former Miss Elizabeth Lauder, niece of the late Andrew Carnegie, accompanies him.

The "Kaimiloa," whose name means "long search" will voyage first to Fanning, Christmas, Penrhyn and Malden Islands, then to the greater groups of Samoa, Fiji, Society, New Caledonia and New Zealand. From there the course is indefinite, although India, Siam and Suez will be stops on the gradual approach to the Near East and Europe.

TWO MORE COUNCILMEN DECLARE CANDIDACIES

Charles Schmidt and J. L. Owens, Both Republicans, Enter Field for Reelection

Two candidates were added to this year's list of aspirants for municipal office today when Councilman Charles Schmidt and J. L. Owens, both republicans, announced that they will be in the race for reelection. Their names will be on the ballot at the primary on August 9.

Schmidt, who is proprietor of a drug store on S. Main-st and resides at 206 St. James-st, represents the fourth ward in the present council. In the new six-ward arrangement, which becomes effective in the election this year, he will be a candidate from the fifth ward, which will comprise territory now in the third and fourth.

Owen is serving his first term as third ward council member and will be in the same ward when the redistricting becomes effective, the only difference being a change in the boundary lines. Owens is a machinist employed by the Marion Steam Shovel Co. and resides at 181 Sharp-st.

Four of the present council members are now in the race for re-election, T. J. Mead, democrat, representing the Second ward, and J. A. Wilkins, republican, first ward councilmen, having announced their candidacies recently. Mead is the only Democrat holding an elective city office here and also is the only representative of his party entered thus far in the primary race for any of the various offices.

Other primary entries up to date are Mayor Earl Hazen and City Auditor Landes, both of whom seek reelection.

Work Toward Recess

Legislative leaders today continued their efforts to get the work of the session in shape which will permit a 10-day recess at the end of this week. During the proposed recess, it was pointed out, the senate finance committee could complete its consideration of the Williamson bill, the regular biennial general appropriations measure, appropriating approximately $51,000,000 to meet costs of state governmental operations during the 18-months' period beginning July 1, next. The bill has passed the house.

Returning at the end of the recess, the solons would complete the work of the session in a few days, including such action as might be deemed necessary relative to any bills vetoed by the governor.

TAX BOOKS FOR ENTIRE MARION COUNTY CLOSED

More Than $40,000 in Delinquent Assessments Outstanding, Claim

Tax books for the entire county were closed Monday by County Treasurer James E. Messenger and turned back to the auditor. Tax payers who did not get in last Saturday are delinquent and must pay a penalty, which automatically goes on the books.

With the tax books closed the next job before the treasurer is the collection of some $40,000 delinquent personal taxes, action on which was started last fall and will culminate with the forced collection of these taxes, either by a collector or through suit.

The action of the county commissioners last fall in ordering the employment of a collector to get these delinquent taxes, and the later reading of a delinquent list, brought in a large amount of delinquent taxes which had not been paid in recent years.

There is still outstanding, Messenger states, more than $40,000, some of it dating back to 1907, which will be checked up by the collector who will take over the delinquent tax list sometime before May 1.

Collections Normal

Tax collections throughout the county were normal this year, although the actual amount collected will not be known until the auditor completes his work on the books and takes off the delinquents.

Tax payers forget from one year to the next that personal tax return blanks must be sworn to, and already the blanks are coming into the office of County Auditor Earl E. Thomas, filled out, but not sworn to. All blanks which come in without the oath attached will be returned.

Any notary can administer the oath on these tax returns, or the deputies in the auditor's office will give it free of charge, if the blank is brought to the courthouse.

It was discovered yesterday, when merchants got their blanks, that the company making up the blanks had not included one item under which merchants formerly listed their merchandise.

Use Item 11

Auditor Thomas today announced that merchants should use item 11 on the tax blanks to give the value of the value of the merchandise in their stores. The item which was omitted from the blanks reads.

"Average value of all goods and merchandise owned or held by me as a merchant."

The kind of business engaged in should be marked opposite item 11 on the blanks, Thomas said, and they would be accepted. The blanks used here for personal tax returns are furnished with the approval of the state tax commission and made up by a company which supplies them for other counties. The error was not discovered here until merchants began to fill in the blanks yesterday.

Personal tax returns must be filed before May 1.

J. F. HOUSER FUENRAL TO BE CONDUCTED THURSDAY

Last Rites Will Be Held at Residence on Wilson-av

Funeral services for James Frank Houser, 49, of 496 Wilson-av, who died at 2:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon at City Hospital of injuries sustained in a fall yesterday morning, will be held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at his home in charge of Rev. U. S. Davis, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church. Marion Lodge No. 70, Free and Accepted Masons, of which he was a member, will conduct a short burial service at his grave in Marion Cemetery. The body may be viewed at the Hess, Markert and Axe Funeral Home, E. Church-st, tonight, and will be removed to his late home Wednesday morning.

Concussion of the brain was assigned as the cause of his death. While engaged in roofing the back porch of the N. E. Arnold home, 382 S. Main-st, yesterday morning, he became dizzy and fell 15 feet, striking his head on a concrete pavement. He was rushed to City Hospital for x-ray examination. He did not regain consciousness.

Mr. Houser was born in Kenton Oct. 23, 1878, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Houser of that city, both now dead. He has made his home in Marion since 1913 and was employed with the Paul S. Caldwell Building Co. He was a member of Trinity Baptist Church and of Marion Lodge, No. 70, F. and A. M.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Hila E. Houser, at home, two daughters, Mrs. Fred Flocken of Philadelphia and Mrs. L. R. Worden of Detroit; two sisters, Mrs. Adam Gossman, of Geneva, O., and Mrs. F. C. Stewart, of East Kenton; and two brothers, Chester Houser of Ada, and John Houser of Springfield.

motor fails they are to fall in the sea. The time is coming, however, when motors will be repaired in the air and one motor only will not be relied upon. Our ship the 'America' will carry three motors."

THE route to be taken by Commander Byrd will be the great circle to Paris. This circle is actually a straight line between New York and Paris but on a chart looks like the arc of a circle because of the curvature of the earth. The route lies over the New England coast to Boston, then north to New Brunswick and New Foundland, out over the ocean for the 2,000-mile hop over the water to England, across the mouth of the channel and on to Paris.

While minimizing the peril of such a trip, the intrepid Bennett admitted that of course necessary precautions would be taken for their safety. He showed the writer a huge rubber boat—an "air raft," he called it—that will be carried on the trip. The rubber raft resembles a large life saving belt, has a water-tight bottom and weighs only 18 pounds. The three men in Byrd's ship could easily fit in it in the event of an accident and float around in the ocean until picked up by a passing ship.

"That's one reason why I think the trip to Paris less perilous than the expedition to the pole," remarked Bennett. "In the arctic you are left to your own resources."

The "America" will keep in constant touch by radio with New York and with ships at sea during the flight. Extensive preparations will be made to obtain meteorological data so that two days of fairly good weather may be selected for the trip. The plane is similar yet somewhat larger than the one used by Byrd on his flight from Spitzbergen to the North Pole. It is being built by the Atlantic Aircraft Corporation of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., and is powered with three Wright air-cooled motors of 220 horsepower.

Rodman Wanamaker, president of the American Transoceanic Co., is sponsoring the financing of the flight of the "America," which is not competing for the $25,000 Orteig prize. The "American Legion" and the other planes, however, are trying to win this prize, which was posted by Raymond Orteig, proprietor of the Hotel Brevoort of New York. Last year Capt. Rene Fonck, the French ace, made an attempt to get off in a Sikorsky biplane but met disaster. He, too, is expected to renew his attempt to fly from New York to Paris this year.

PROTECTION OF SEWAGE PLANT IS DISCUSSED

Council Expected to Remedy Situation at Its Next Session

Action on plans for work to be done at the city sewage treatment plant to protect it against damage from floods is expected at the next meeting of City Council.

Superintendent Brown of the sewage plant appeared before council last night and outlined details of the proposed work but suggested that action be delayed until it is definitely known how much money will be available. This can not be determined until the city's share of the last tax collection is received and distributed to the various funds.

The superintendent made it clear to council members, however, that certain changes should be made at the plant to guard against what might prove to be serious damage in the future. Flood water covered a large part of the land surrounding the plant following the heavy rainfall several weeks ago and overflowed into the furnace ventilator room.

Mr. Brown recommends that the height of the concrete walls of this room be increased to prevent a recurrence of this trouble. It is feared that without this safeguard there will be danger of water reaching the furnace fires.

Pit Flooded

The section of the plant known as the deep valve pit was also flooded by water seeping through the concrete walls. This trouble can be eliminated in the future, it is said, by coating the pit walls with waterproofing material.

Embankments of earth on one side of the plant were washed out by the recent flood and the repairs will be needed there, the superintendent states. It is estimated that all of the changes and repair, which also include concreting a drainage line running alongside the plant, will cost approximately $900.

Council Agrees

Members of council have agreed, it is stated, that there should be no hesitancy in authorizing this expenditure to protect a plant which cost the city $175,000.

Superintendent Brown's report that the plant was tremendously overtaxed by water emptying into it from the city's storm sewer lines during the recent heavy rain pictures a situation far more serious than the flood menace, councilmen believe. They expect to take steps in the near future to eliminate cross connections between the city's storm water sewer systems so that nothing but sanitary sewage will pass through the plant. It is proposed to establish a city sewer inspection department to have charge of the work.

OFFICIAL WAR PICTURE OPENS RUN AT GRAND

With 2,800 feet of additional film showing the activities of the American army in France, and a special opening stage scene not used at the first showing here, the war film, "America Under Fire," opened a return engagement of three days at the Grand Theater last night.

Corporal Bob Ingleston has added some new and very interesting scenes to his film since the show was here last. The new films add 2,800 feet to the total footage, which includes all that was shown here at the previous showing.

CAPTAIN WARD TO SPEAK AT THEATER TONIGHT

Captain George Ward, Columbus, state president of Rainbow Veterans, will give a short talk at the presentation of the photoplay, "America Under Fire," at the Grand Theater, given under the auspices of members of Marion Chapter, Rainbow Women of Ohio. Last night's show was given to a capacity house and it is expected that record crowds will attend the presentation of the play tonight and Wednesday afternoon and night.

dinance outlining the improvement plans, a resolution fixing the assessment rate and another ordinance authorizing issuance and sale of bonds before the project passes to the jurisdiction of the board of control, Prettyman was informed. All of these proceedings can not be concluded before September, other officials stated.

With this assurance, Prettyman voted for the resolution and it passed unanimously. In explaining his reason for starting the discussion, Prettyman said he wants it understood that he favors improving Center-st but that he does not believe the preliminary proceedings should be definitely concluded at too early a date.

Possible Handicap

Premature sale of the Center-st improvement bonds might prove a serious handicap to the city should funds be needed for some unforeseen emergency, Prettyman said. The law places a definite limit on the amount of bonds that can be issued during any one year.

During the discussion, City Engineer Cathers said that in his opinion it would be unwise to resurface W. Center-st. Although resurfacing jobs have been successful and durable on other streets, he believes that there would be no assurance of a similar result on W. Center-st, where the traffic is unusually heavy.

The engineer also explained that it is planned to lay new sewer, water and gas lines in the thoroughfare and that this program of improvements would be considerably hampered and complicated unless the present paving is removed and a new one constructed.

Provisions of Act

The resolution adopted last night provides for paving extending from the Hocking Valley railway to the west side of Main-st. The street is to be widened 15 feet up to Oak-st to conform with the width of the paving in the up-town section. Property owners will pay all but two per cent of the cost of the widening and half of the cost of the present width. The C., D. & M. Electric Co. will be required to reconstruct its tracks and pay for paving between the rails and one foot on each side. The balance of the cost will be borne by the city.

Proceedings in preparation for the improvement started several weeks ago when a petition signed by persons owning about 70 per cent of the W. Center-st property frontage was filed. This petition was circulated after council had promised to order the work done next year.

It is expected that after the street is paved from the Hocking Valley railway to Main-st, the paving will be extended east to High-st. This extension would not be made, however, until 1929 or later.

SPEAKER URGES SQUARE DEAL FOR ALL BOYS

Tarl Baer, Y. M. C. A. Executive, Addresses Noon Luncheon of Rotary Club

"A square deal for all our boys includes all the help any boy needs when he needs it in his teen-age fight for clean honorable, useful manhood," said Tarl Baer, Y. M. C. A. executive who addressed the Marion Rotary Club at the luncheon Monday noon at Hotel Harding.

Discussing help for the boys of the present day in the light of what the men of this day have accomplished he said:

"Of the obligations laid upon us by our good fortunes in our heredity and environment, the principal one is to pass on to the boys of today the best of what we have received from the men of yesterday, regardless of the cost to us of doing so, even at the cost of our lives, for our fathers offered their lives to insure these things for us.

Stresses Character

"The one and only thing that can insure stability to our American ideals and institutions, and make business prosperity, security and happiness is character.

"Character doesn't 'just grow' like Topsy. Character is wholly a created product, created at the cost of much energy, time and money. Character is the most valuable asset of any individual, any community, any business, any profession, any nation. Without character there could be no value to prosperity, security, business or home life, nothing that makes life worth living.

"Every man profits constantly by and from character in others, therefore every man owes a constant debt to those who create character. This debt can be paid, but not alone with money. To pay it in full we must cooperate with our fellows with our time, energy, ability and money in the creation of character."

Discusses Work

Mr. Baer touched on the work of the Y. M. C. A. and its constant aim of building character in the boys of today.

In the making of a man, he said, there only two things that count. These are heredity and environment. It is up to the men of today to pass on to the boys now growing up whatever fortune they have had in the way of heredity and environment, which he condensed into the sentence:

"Good fortune always entails commensurate obligation."

Children who get the foods which satisfy their special needs

grow—sleep—play normally

Mothers who are constantly with their children, often cannot judge whether certain physical changes are taking place normally, or not. The changes are so slight from day to day. But they are very important.

For normal growth, there are special needs which must be liberally provided for, authorities now declare.

One of the most important of these needs is for an abundance of protein. It is helpful to know how much real value certain foods have. Almost one-fourth of a child's daily need for protein is supplied by a cup of Mother's Oats with a cup of milk.

Vitamins are needed, too—and plenty of minerals, if physical development is to be perfect. These also are richly supplied by Mothers's Oats with milk. And energy materials, and bran.

For Mother's Oats is a natural whole-grain food. Its careful millers take pride in using only the cream of the oat crop each year, and then milling it in special ways to preserve all the natural health essentials. Because it is milled with such extra care, it is even-textured and fine—you can count on it always to cook up to the even smoothness that you like—always to have the same rich flavor.

Two kinds—the kind you have always known or Quick (cooks in 2½ to 5 minutes). Both with coupons interchangeable with Aunt Jemima coupons, which bring you silverware, household conveniences, toys, etc.
